Questions Are Sent To Grand Jury Panel

Data On Private Lives Of Members Requested

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

Members of the panel from which the 1973 Marin County Grand Jury was drawn have received from the county public defender's office a lengthy questionnaire about their private lives, affiliations and finances.

The questionnaire was accompanied by a letter, signed by Deputy Public Defender Larry L. Heon, which said it is "part of an investigation into grand jury selection methods. Your responses to these question will be used as a part of a statistical survey in support of motions in pending criminal cases."

The letter went on to request cooperation "to avoid unnecessary subpoenas to obtain this information from you, which may be issued upon the public defender's signature under Penal Code Section 1326."

It said, "This material will be kept confidential, except as disclosed in support of motions addressed to the Marin Superior Court."

Asked about the questionnaire, Public Defender Harold J. Truett said the investigation was undertaken at the request of San Quentin Prison inmates represented by his office, "as a result of the decision (by visiting Judge Vernon Stoll) dismissing the indictments against the San Quentin Six."

Judge Stoll threw out the indictments in January, on the contention that the 1972 grand jury by which the six were indicted did not contain proper representation of blacks, Chicanos and youth.

The judge acted after hearing arguments by Charles Garry, attorney for some of the defendants. Garry had tried in eight previous cases to have indictments dismissed because of alleged lack of quota reprssentation on grand jury panels, according to his own account. The previous judges had all rejected the plea. Judge Stoll's decision is on appeal.

Truett said the case for which the grand jury panel investigation is being made is that of People vs. Marcello Baeza.

Baeza, 28, serving a prison sentence for drug possession, is charged with the murder of Lynwood Bell, a 24-year-old life term convict who was knifed to death in the prison's main yard last Aug. 30.

If the grand jury challenge is successful in the Baeza case, it wil be used in three other San Quentin cases now in the public defender's office, Truett said.

If Heon's grand jury challenge is to be successful, he said he needs more time to poll not only the current panel but also those "for four or five years back."

Today was the deadline for filing all motions in the Baeza case, and Heon said he would ask Judge Charles Read Best for an extension to prepare the lengthy motion.

With only about half of the questionnaires returned — and some with answers omitted — Heon said he will be unable to make the motion to quash if the time extension is not granted.

He said his office feels obligated to make the investigation and challenge to provide the best possible defense for its client.

Grand jury challenges in other cases are researched by private attorneys with money to spend on private investigators, but, Truett said, his office has neither the time nor the money to hire investigators. Hence the questionnaire, which he said was thought to be the easiest, fastest and least costly method of getting the data needed to challenge the grand jury's composition.

"Perhaps a quickie questionnaire and a quickie letter was not the best method," he conceded.

Truett said there have been "quite a few" complaints to his office about the questionnaire, especially about a question asking the respondent's approximate current net worth. He said he had told complainers they might skip that question.

The 32-part questionnaire also asks about occupation, income, number of persons in household, education, how nominated for grand jury service, and affiliations. It also asks whether an organization with which the former prospective grand juror is affiliated excludes any ethnic or religious groups.

Suit Seeks New Talks On Annex

The City of San Rafael is being sued by residents of the unincorporated Country Club tract who are seeking to reopen annexation proceedings with the city.

The suit by John L. and Jane G. Levinsohn and Reatha T. Godwin asks the state Supreme Court to order the city to resume merger proceedings, or show cause why proceedings should not be reopened.

The high court, however, yesterday transferred the case to the First District Court of Appeals, according to City Mgr. William J. Bielser.

The city dropped annexation of the area after owners of 57 per cent of the land involved opposed merger with San Rafael and so killed consolidation under state law.

The suit now before the appellate court charges that state law linking merger with property values is unconstitutional.

"The issue is whether landowners of an unincorporated area have the power to deny the people of that area the right to vote on whether said area should be annexed to an existing contiguous city," according to the suit.

State law unjustly allows a minority of voters of an area to deny local self-government by a majority of voters, according to the suit.

The suit cites a Supreme Court ruling in Los Angeles that held unconstitutional state code relating to the right of landowners to deprive the electorate of a voice in incorporation proceedings.

City Atty. Fred C. Robbins last January was directed by the council to explore this high court decision, but reported later that any legal test of annexation procedure linking merger to property value "would be too burdensome and costly to the city."

Housing Element In Plan Attacked

By JEFF GREER

A series of speakers last night told the San Rafael Planning Commission they object to "having the social responsibility of providing low cost housing placed on our backs" by the preliminary San Rafael general plan.

Many of the speakers, mostly spokesmen for homeowner associations, charged that the consultants who created the proposed plan are concerned with "the people who want to live here instead of the ones who already live here."

None of the speakers at the hearing on Chapter 3, the housing and residential environment section, had time to study and comment on the city staff's criticisms of the chapter, which were completed only hours earlier.

Nor was there any comment on Planning Director Herbert G. Hotchner's proposal that the San Rafael Redevelopment Agency be expanded to cover the entire city, to use tax increment financing to subsidize lower cost housing in residential neighborhoods.

Planning commission chairman Albert G. Boro invited citizens to write their views to the commission, for review at three special meetings on the housing chapter.

The sessions will be at 8 p.m. tomorrow March 28 and April 2, in the public works conference room at San Rafael City Hall.

The commission will consider only written opinions, the meeting room holds only about 25 persons and no speaker from the audience will be heard, commissioners explained.

Typical of the audience comments last night was this by Stanley Hellman of the East San Rafael Council: "We don't believe it's our social responsibility to provide housing for everyone." He opposed annual building quotas urged in the plan and said the proposals to build low-to-moderate cost cluster housing in East San Rafael "is a far-out concept which we absolutely repudiate." Many of the 125 persons in the audience applauded.

One San Rafael businessman declared he couldn't understand "even half" of the plan. Richard Hampton recommended the city fathers "take the $70,000 loss, throw that darn thing away and start all over."

Carl Brown of Novato, executive director of the Redwood Empire Builders Association, claimed the proposed annual building limit of 500 homes is illegal, citing the court decision striking down Petaluma's similar ordinance.

"Any program that is exclusionary is illegal," he said. "I'm flabbergasted," he said of rent control and building code proposals in the plan.

Warren W. Jones, principal author of the plan prepared by the consulting firm of Duncan and Jones, argued that the population limit issue won't be settled until it is decided by an appellate court, "which hasn't been done."

He said the plan mention of high-density housing in exclusive Peacock Gap and nearby neighborhoods was merely sug-

7 Escape Homestead Valley Fire

A smoky, blazing fire which apparently started in a furnace swept through a Homestead Valley house today, but the seven occupants escaped unharmed.

A volunteer fireman, Reb Blake, 27, who cut an artery in his hand while fighting the blaze, was treated at Marin General Hospital.

The house's owner, Ronald L. Grenier, his wife and three children, including a new baby, left the house as the fire started shortly before 8 a.m. Also escaping unharmed were the occupants of a downstairs apartment, Jay W. Betts and Antonia Williams.

The house at 130 Homestead Boulevard, a two-story frame building, was completely gutted, and Tamalpais Valley Fire Department Chief Dale Bennett estimated the damage to the structure at $30,000.

The contents of the house, including antiques, also were a total loss, according to firemen, but no estimate of the damage had been made.

$190,000 Of Ransom Money Is Recovered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI announced today it had recovered about $190,000 of the $200,000 ransom paid the kidnapers who abducted Mrs. Eunice Kronholm, wife of a South St. Paul, Minn., banker.

FBI Director Clarence Kelley said the money was found under a snowmobile trailer in a garage in a vacant lot in Burnsville, Minn., where they believe the kidnapers held Mrs. Kronholm captive from the time she was taken Friday until she escaped Monday afternoon.

Novato Rejects Base House Use

By FRANK FARRARA

The Novato City Council gave a cold shoulder last night to a proposal by the Ecumenical Association for Housing to use surplus housing at Hamilton Air Force Base for a low-to-moderate-income project. (Another Novato City Council story, page 14.)

Only Mayor David Price Jones voted to endorse the proposal to use 165 units of the abandoned Lanham housing along the west boundary of the base.

Two residents charged it would create a ghetto, would overload Novato with low-income housing and attract poor people from outside the city.

The association has proposed using the housing for five years, with 20 per cent of the tenants in the low income category, 60 per cent in moderate income and 20 per cent unlimited income.

The request for use of the housing on 23 surplus acres has been sent to Rep. Otis G. Pike, D-N.Y., chairman of the Armed Services Subcommittee, which is to determine use of the surplus land at the base.

The land could be offered for sale or lease to the city. Marin County or the Ecumenical Housing Corp., the association reported.

The buildings are 32 years old, but have been maintained and are usable, the association said.

Sonic Boom Reports From All Over Marin

A sonic boom, its source a mystery, shook the Bay Area with such force about 3:30 a.m. today that many residents thought it an earthquake.

It was heard in every part of Marin County and as far away as San Jose.

The Hamilton Air Force Base information office said that there are no planes at Hamilton now capable of supersonic flight to cause such a sonic boom. Travis and Beale Air Force told the Independent-Journal they had no plane in the air which could have caused it.

Kenneth Miller, professor of geology at the College of Marin said that he felt it so strongly at his home in San Anselmo that he looked at the seismograph at the College of Marin the first thing this morning, but no earthquake was recorded.

Neither did the University of California seismograph register any earthquake during the period.

Residents from all over Marin County reported that it was a double boom, almost like a roll of thunder.

"I went through the earthquake in 1906 and this was louder," said Emil Mangini of Lagunitas. He said he thought that it would flatten his house.

The boom was reported to the I-J by phone calls from Point Reyes Station, Marshall, Nicasio, Woodacre, Terra Linda, San Anselmo, Fairfax, Kentfield and Novato.

The strangest report came from the family of Katherine Kropf on South Ridgewood Road in Kentfield. The boom was followed by a strange red jiggly light in the sky which was watched by all members of the family as it changed location, finally going behind a tree.

One woman told the Independent-Journal that she never did get back to sleep because her dog was scared into bed with her.

The Federal Aviation Agency control tower in Oakland did not know what had caused the boom, but said that it had had other inquiries about it.

Sirica's Decision On Nixon File Appealed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The lawyer for former presidential aides H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman today filed legal briefs to block the House Judiciary Committee from receiving a secret grand jury report into President Nixon's handling of Watergate.

John J. Wilson, who represents both of the men who were once Nixon's closest White House associates, asked in the U.S. Court of Appeals for a writ of mandamus or prohibition; and in U.S. District Court for a stay of execution of the order giving the material to the Judiciary committee.

District Judge John J. Sirica ruled Monday that the report, compiled by the grand jury that indicted Haldeman, Ehrlichman and five other of Nixon's close associates or campaign workers on March 1, must be turned over to the committee's impeachment inquiry.

Sirica gave attorneys two days to appeal, and Haldeman and Ehrlichman's came several hours before the deadline.

Wilson's action in the Appeals Court is aimed at reversing Sirica's decision. His motion in District Court would stop the committee from getting the report until the Appeals Court rules.

Wilson has argued in court before Sirica that the secret report was "wholly illegal and improper," and predicted that if it ever reaches Capitol Hill, reporters would immediately begin tapping leaks to learn its contents.

This, he contends, would prohibit a fair trial for his clients, who have pleaded innocent to charges of conspiracy in the Watergate cover-up.

Haldeman formerly was Nixon's top lieutenant, his chief of staff. Ehrlichman was the President's chief domestic adviser. Both resigned on April 30, 1973

LONDON (UPI) — In an implied slap at France, Britain's new Labor government made clear yesterday it wants "the fullest and most intimate cooperation" between the United States and Western Europe as a condition of closer ties to the Common Market.

Callaghan

In its first major foreign policy statement, Foreign Secretary James Callaghan said Britain will not cooperate in moves for closer integration in Western Europe until its Common Market membership terms have been renegotiated.

Shooting Mishap

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — In a "tragic accident" early today, Northern Ireland policemen shot several British soldiers they mistook for Irish Republican Army (IRA) gunmen, the police said.

A police spokesman said two soldiers were killed and two wounded in two gunfights in a rural area south of Belfast.

Press In Trouble

LISBON (UPI) — A national crisis over Portugal's conduct of her African wars has not only cost some of her top generals their jobs but has landed newspapermen and a book publisher in trouble as well.

A spokesman for Expresso, one of Portugal's few politically independent newspapers, said last night the paper has been advised of court action over its reporting of the crisis.

At the same time, publishing circles said that Editor Paradela de Abreu has been fired. He was the head of the Arcadia publishing house which brought out the book that sparked the confrontation between hawks and doves over the 13-year-old anti-guerrilla wars.

Reds Attacked

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Cambodian government troops with air support overran a Communist strongpoint today in their fight to relieve 1,200 comrades trapped near rebel-held Oudong and retake the city, field reporters said.

Officers said government troops recaptured Kompong Luong, 21 miles northwest of Phnom Penh and four miles east of Oudong, a provincial capital taken Monday by the Communists in one of their biggest successes of the war.

Expelled Russian

VIENNA (UPI) — With an American visa in his pocket, Soviet dissident Pavel Litvinov set out today to see friends in Europe before going to his new home country, the United States.

Poppy Ban End

ANKARA (UPI) — The government of Prime Minister Bulent Ecevit will lift Turkey's 15-month-old ban on cultivation of the opium poppy imposed with the encouragement of the United States — in the next few days, political sources said today.

Ecevit, who promised the move during last October's election campaign, said this week he would announce the government's final decision "in a couple of days."

The government already has permitted the planting of seed crops on state farms.

Press Restricted

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — The Argentine government instituted today new restrictions on the press, including putting all foreign news agency offices in one building.

The plan was drafted by the secretary of press and broadcasting, Emilio Abras, it was announced, and approved by President Juan D. Peron.

Hamlet Overrun

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist forces swept over a government hamlet in the Mekong Delta at dawn yesterday, killing 18 persons, the Saigon military command said today.

Elsewhere, 117 government Rangers, missing for three days in the thick jungle of the Central Highlands, reported back to their command unit last night, military sources said today, after fighting their way through Communist lines.

Nixon Declares He Will 'Stand And Fight'

HOUSTON (UPI) — Declaring that he will "stand and fight" to preserve the office, President Nixon last night brushed aside a plea that he resign from a previously staunch Republican ally, Sen. James L. Buckley of New York.

Nixon also refused again to relinquish 42 tapes the House Judiciary Committee deems vital to its impeachment inquiry. But he urged the committee to speed up investigation on information it now has in hand on Watergate and resolve the issue.

"Dragging on Watergate drags down America," Nixon declared.

In a nationally televised, hour-long question-and-answer session before a generally friendly audience of broadcast executives, Nixon said many Americans might share the sentiments Buckley voiced that he resign and get the country out of the "Watergate swamp."

Without judging guilt or innocence, Buckley said, the President should resign as "an extraordinary act of statesmanship and courage."

Nixon was adamant.

He said of his mission as chief executive that it "would take courage to stand and fight and do the job you've been elected to do.

And he said he was going to do just that.

Nixon scheduled a trip to the nearby Lyndon B. Johnson Space Center today to decorate America's three newest Skylab astronauts for their longest ever mission in space by man and review plans for a joint U.S.-Soviet earth orbit mission next year.

It was the President's third trip into the country's midsection in five days. Aides said he was determined to "go public" in hopes of blunting the congressional impeachment drive and neutralizing the Watergate scandal.

In the wide-ranging session, the President:

Announced that the end of the Arab oil embargo should bring steadily diminishing lines at the gas pumps. Forget about compulsory gasoline rationing. Service stations will open again on Sundays—starting this weekend.

Chided the nine European Common Market nations again for their "go-it-alone" policies, and warned this raised the spectre of "a new sense of isolationism" in the United States.

Said American farmers "never had it so good, and we want to keep it this way because the farmers aren't going to produce unless they get a good price."

Sparred with reporters about his relations with the press, saying the President should treat the media just as fairly as the press treats him and "the President has the right of self-defense."

Throughout the session the crowd was generally on the President's side. They applauded some of the tough questions on Watergate. They also hand clapped many of Nixon's replies.

In pledging he would dig in to fight for his office, Nixon said a resignation "would mean that every future President would preside over a weak government. The United States and the free world need a strong President, not a President who will resign whenever the polls are down."

As before, Nixon said he would not budge on the principle of presidential confidentiality. He said he was trying to meet congressional demands for presidential files, "but I must think not of myself but of future Presidents."

"I'm not going to do anything not participate in the destruction of the Presidency of the United States while I am in office."

To a question about impeachment, Nixon hinted if the House Judiciary Committee subpoenas the 42 tapes, he might ignore it.

He was asked how he thought the committee could meet its responsibilities on impeachment when denied documents and evidence it feels necessary for a thorough investigation. He reaffirmed his stand on Presidential confidentiality and said:

"The House of Representatives, just like the President, is bound by the Constitution. The Constitution says a President shall be impeached for treason, bribery or high crimes or misdemeanors."

"I am suggesting that the House follow the Constitution," he said. "If they do, I will."

Nixon conceded he was mistaken about his apparently conflicting statements March 6 before reporters in Washington and last Friday in Chicago before business executives, about how he learned of payments being made to the seven original Watergate conspirators.

"My statement on March 6 was incorrect insofar as I (said I) learned payments had been made for blackmail, that payments had been made for the purpose of keeping defendants still. I should have said I learned that payments were alleged to have been made."

Nixon did not back down from recent harsh statements about the failure of America's European allies to consult before taking precipate action on their own.

He said he would not permit dismay over their economic and political actions to lead him to embrace proposals by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield for a major reduction in the 300,000 force of U.S. servicemen stationed in Europe.

However, the President said, the Europeans "must understand that if they are hoetile, it is going to be difficult for this President, or any President, to get through Congress" measures beneficial to both sides.

REAFFIRMS STAND — President Nixon, addressing an audience of broadcast executives and a nationally televised question-and-answer session from Houston, declared last night that "dragging on Watergate, drags down America." He also brushed aside a plea from Republican Sen. James L. Buckley of New York to resign.

Time Publisher Receives Honor

LAWRENCE, Kan. (UPI) — Arthur Ochs Sulzberger, publisher of the New York Times, yesterday accepted the 1974 William Allen White Award for journalistic merit.

He said the award was more symbolic than individual.

"The award honors the thousands of newsmen and women across the country who devote their lives to the pursuit of truth," said Sulzberger, who is president of the New York Times Co. and chairman of the board.

"It honors also the memory of a great editor and the ideals of a free press for which he so staunchly stood."

Thieves Steal Two Prints By Picasso

BANGKOK (UPI) — Two prints by the late Pablo Picasso have been stolen from an art exhibit here, French authorities said today.

Thieves apparently using razor blades cut the prints from their frames yesterday at the Alliance Francaise where the Picasso exhibit is being shown, Alliance officials said. The thieves tried to steal a third print but could not cut it from its frame, they said.

Ray Is Claiming Two Accomplices

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — James Earl Ray, convicted killer of Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., says at least two other persons were involved with him in a conspiracy to kill the black civil rights leader, according to an article in the current issue of The National Enquirer.

"There definitely was a conspiracy to kill Martin Luther King," the Enquirer quotes Ray as saying. "I was not alone in it. I can prove I wasn't in the room when the shot was fired. I know of two other men who were involved in the conspiracy."

The newspaper said he declined to reveal any details that would identify the alleged conspirators.

Reed Teacher Groups Present Pay Demands

Two teachers' groups last night presented requests for pay raises next year to the Reed School District board, one group requesting 12 per cent more money, the other, 15 per cent.

Supt. Ralph D. Giovanniello said Bel Air teacher Katrina Nata told the board the Reed Chapter of the American Federation of Teachers wants an automatic annual cost of living increase based on Bureau of Labor Statistics data for the Bay Area and beginning with 7 per cent increase for next year. She also asked for an 8 per cent basic salary increase.

Among fringe benefits requested by the AFT were paid medical insurance coverage after retirement, full dental insurance for teachers' families, multiphasic physical examinations for Blue Cross subscribers and long term disability insurance.

Del Mar teacher Nancy Schlagel then told the board the Reed District Teachers Association wants a 12 per cent salary increase.

Giovanniello said the district has not yet computed what these salary packages would cost annually. He said the district board would like negotiations completed by May 1.

The Reed School District board also:

RETIREMENT — Introduced a proposal to encourage teachers to retire at age 55. According to the superintendent, retirees would get roughly $4,000 per year for five years or until age 65, whichever arrived first. For their pensions, they would do some part-time consulting work for the district.

STORAGE — Voted to spend $400 to build a school storage and locker area at Reedland Woods.

SB90 — Agreed to consult with other elementary districts in the Tamalpais High School District about organizing a delegation to go to Sacramento to complain to state legislators about hardships caused by SB90.

MEETING — Set April 18 at 7:30 p.m. for a special parent, teacher and board meeting at Reedland Woods School to discuss programs and facilities at Reedland Woods and the school's future under a situation of declining enrollment.

Odd-Even Gas Program Working Well In Marin

Board members of the Marin County Independent Service Station Association agreed last night that the county's voluntary odd-even gasoline distribution plan is "quite helpful," according to President Art Baptiste.

He said independent station operators had no suggestions for changing the system, saying it was cutting down the length of lines of cars waiting for gasoline.

The plan also is making "regular customers a little more contented," Baptiste said, because they know the same cars are not "topping off" each day.

Many service station operators in Marin have discontinued the practice of limiting purchase of gasoline to a certain number of gallons, Baptiste said, again in an effort to keep motorists from returning to gasoline lines so frequently.

STUBBORN BLAZE — Firemen battle a smoky fire as it engulfs the Sundance Saloon in Novato. The fire this morning caused damage estimated at $54,000 to the structure and its contents.

A stubborn, smoky blaze raced through the Sundance Saloon in Novato today, causing damage estimated at $54,000 to the building and its contents.

The fire began on the lower floor of the two-story wood-frame and cement-block structure shortly after 12:15 a.m., according to Novato Fire Chief Jack Kidder.

By the time firemen arrived, the saloon was engulfed in flames. It took 43 men approximately three hours to extinguish the fire completely, the chief said.

Kidder said firefighting efforts were hampered by the fact the building was securely locked and by the heavy smoke.

The chief said cause of the fire is not known. The saloon, at 5420 Redwood Highway, had not been open since Saturday, according to owner Russell Grabb of Petaluma.

Kidder said the front portion of the structure, about 25 per cent of the building, was gutted by the flames and the main bar area sustained heavy smoke and water damage. Portions of the second floor balcony also were heavily damaged.

Firemen estimated approximately $32,000 damage to the building, owned by Joseph Filippo of San Rafael, $20,000 to the contents and $2,500 to the J and M Building Specialties firm next door.

The Sundance recently has been the target of complaints by nearby residents who have claimed they have been annoyed by excessive noise, juveniles drinking in cars and urinating on the walls of adjacent apartments.

Last week about 25 of the saloon's neighbors asked the City of Novato to take action against the bar.

Kidder said he found no indication of any connection between the resident complaints and the fire. He said there was no evidence that the blaze had been set deliberately.

as the Watergate scandal engulfed the White House.

In his decision Monday, Sirica brushed off contentions that the report would prevent fair trials for the Watergate defendants.

"Their standing is dubious at best, given the already stated facts that (1), their mention in the report is incidenta; (2), their trials will provide ample opportunity for response to such references, none of which go beyond allegations of the indictment; and (3), considerations of possible adverse publicity are both premature and speculative."

The grand jury gave Sirica the report the day it indicted the seven in the cover-up, and asked the judge to forward it to the committee.

After studying its contents and his law books for 18 days, Sirica decided the committee must have the report if it is to do a thorough job in its impeachment inquiry.

"It seems incredible that grand jury matters should lawfully be available to disbarment committees and police disciplinary investigations, and yet be unavailable to the House of Representatives in a proceeding of so great import as an impeachment investigation," Sirica said.

Nixon's lawyers did not contest the committee's right to the report.

Three Injured In Auto Crash

Three San Anselmo residents were injured yesterday after the car in which they were riding collided with another vehicle at Second and C streets in San Rafael.

Treated at Marin General Hospital for cuts and bruises were driver Duane L. Walkup and two passengers, Sandra L. Wilson and Lynn M. Wilson, all of 543 Sequoia Drive.

Police said the car driven by Walkup failed to stop for a red light and smashed broadside into a car driven by Salvador Marckwordt of 54 Park Road, San Anselmo.

Both cars were heavily damaged in the 9:01 p.m. accident, police said.

Sewer Board Asks Plans For Annex

The Richardson Bay Sanitary District board has asked its engineer and attorney to prepare plans to annex about 20 homes on Greenwood Beach Road in Tiburon to the district.

The county health department has been threatening to sue these residents because their septic tanks are polluting the bay.

Ruth Jackson, board secretary said 14 people living on the street were at the sanitary district board meeting Tuesday to discuss sewer connection plans.

She said an assessment district probably will be formed on the street to finance the project.

The annexation still must be approved by the Local Agency Formation Commission.

To Recess

GENEVA (UPI) — The United States and Soviet Union yesterday agreed temporary to recess the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) because of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's scheduled trip to Moscow next week.

PLANS

gested "directions" for a proposed housing task force and neighborhood planning groups to study.

He said the plan's authors were "persuaded" to make some of the proposals by the citizens advisory committee, in respect to the housing mix, but "we do not recommend it for specific neighborhoods."

The housing mix proposal was defended by Julian Lifschiz of the advisory committee housing group; Monica Foster of the League of Women Voters of Central Marin; Martin Mackey, director of the Ecumenical Association for Housing; William P. Reiner of Pikes Peak Drive; Tina Ferris of the citizens advisory council, and others.

Mrs. Foster said the 1970 census showed 30 per cent of San Rafael's residents had annual incomes of less than $8,000, and that 21 per cent of the county's labor pool must live outside the county due to high housing costs.

Reiner warned that the homeowner groups "aren't concerned with the general good" of the city, "but with their own neighborhoods. They're concerned with the issue of a governmentally forced housing mix."

Mrs. Ferris said, "it was the intention of the citizens advisory council, not to create a snobocracy of San Rafael when we came up with "the housing mix — "but we may have come up with a divisive idea."

Resident Richard C. Fox urged that critics not "pull this thing down in a shambles" over the housing mix and growth limit issues. But he said the preliminary plan lacks guarantees "against another Canal Area elsewhere in San Rafael."

The city's interdepartmental task force sumbitted a five-page report commenting on the housing chapter. It stressed that there are incompatibilities between restricting building — which can force realty prices up — and the call for low-cost housing, as well as conflicts between other goals in the plan.

"The techniques proposed when applied to the objectives stated . . . will not produce the results desired," the staff report said. Hence either the techniques should be changed or the goals modified.

Hotchner also made public his March 6 memo to the city staff task force, in which he said the preliminary plan suggestions for accomplishing a housing mix "have already been tried in the Marin County General Plan . . . and found to be inadequate in both scope and result."

He wrote that "it would be legal and possible" to declare the entire City of San Rafael, with the exclusion of the present redevelopment area, as a redevelopment area for the purpose of diverting a percentage of the tax increment to subsidize housing rentals, buying land for low-cost housing, or similar purposes.

Diversion of even 10 per cent of the city tax income available from increased assessed valuation during 1973 would make $84,364 available for such work, he estimated.

He noted that the major part of the property tax dollar supports education, but argued that Senate Bill 90 would minimize the impact of the incremental diversion.

HOUSING

opposed "the project in every way."

"I believe this would become a ghetto," Marsh said. He objected to the City of Novato becoming a "dumping ground for poor people," and said there should be a way to limit the amount of "low cost housing" in the city.

Diane Ryken, a member of the city's advisory committee on human needs, said there are many people working in Novato who can't afford to live in the city and they need such housing.

Ralph R. Patterson of 3 Winged Foot Drive, said the addition of the proposed project "on top of Raphael Village," and apartment developments in the area "will create a ghetto-like impact in our community."

"If we don't hold the line, we'll have something we really can't handle," Patterson said. The Air Force considered the Lanham housing substandard and used it only on a temporary basis, he said.

Councilman Dorothy P. Young said she would consider endorsement if the project were to serve Novato residents, but "as I understand it, it will be for citizens of all Marin County and possibly citizens out of the county."

Councilman Fred F. Ruegg said once established "it would be difficult to abandon," and "I don't think it an appropriate use for this spot."

Councilman Gail M. Wilhelm, who has advocated moderate and low income housing in Novato, said the proposed project would be too isolated and wouldn't meet the housing element aim of having such housing dispersed throughout the community.

Too Many Kentfield Students Are Gifted

It may take more than the usual gifts to be considered gifted in the Kentfield School District.

District trustees seem to think the state's definition of a gifted child — one with an IQ of 132 or better — is too loose for Kentfield, according to Supt. Eugene C. Peters.

It all began last night when trustees learned that about 15 per cent of the district's students — or 180 youngsters — would qualify for a proposed gifted children program.

"The board felt that was too many students," Peters said. He noted that IQs of youngsters around the state average about 105; in Kentfield the average IQ is considerably higher, about 120.

"So the state criteria may not be appropriate" in the district, the superintendent added.

He said trustees appeared to favor a gifted program for the top 3 per cent of district students rather than the top 15 per cent.

The Kentfield School District board also:

RESIGNATION — Accepted the resignation of Joe Wells, a maintenance supervisor with the district for 16 years.

LEAVE — Approved a maternity leave for the 1974-75 school year for teacher Catherine Anton.

COUNSELING — Briefly reviewed a proposed counseling and guidance program for the district. The board will act on the proposal (for a full time counselor at the district's junior high school and half time counselors for its four elementary schools) at its April 2 meeting.

Sixth Draft Lottery Held

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The sixth annual draft lottery was held today and young men born on February 28, 1955, will be the first to be called if some new national emergency should make it necessary for Congress to reinstate inductions.

In opening the capsule drawing ceremony, however, Deputy Selective Service Director John D. Dewhurst said there was "no intention on the part of the President or on the leaders of Congress...to seek restoration of induction authority."

Residents Ask Expanded Sheriff's Ride Program

Residents of several Gallinas Valley communities last night expressed interest in expanding the sheriff's "ride along program" to include youngsters from their areas.

According to Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere, about a dozen persons attended the meeting and formed an ad hoc committee to promote more youth activities.

The sheriff's ride along program, called Teen Beat 1, currently operates in the Santa Venetia area, where it has met with success among teen-agers.

Its purpose is to develop greater understanding between teen-agers and law enforcement officers. Roumiguiere said there has been a marked decrease in vandalism as a result of it and other programs.

He said members of the ad hoc committee, representing Marinwood, Santa Venetia and Lucas Valley, among others, plan to meet next month to discuss each other's youth programs.

The goal is to improve and expand those programs, Roumiguiere said.

District Adopts Space Name

The Marin County Regional Park District was officially renamed the County Open Space District yesterday by its baord of directors.

The name change resulted from state legislation permitting districts organized under the regional park section of the law to call themselves open space districts.

The change had been sought by backers of the district for more than a year to clarify the local district's purpose, which is to buy and maintain open space lands.

Zone Winners Selected In Bank Awards Program

Winners in the zone competition last night in the Bank of America achievement awards program were announced today.

Bee Barrier Being Sought

CARACAS (UPI) — The Institute of Agronomy Studies has recommended establishment of a genetic barrier on the Venezuelan-Brazilian border to prevent northern migration of the killer African bee.

The institute says the Venezuelan agriculture ministry should saturate the frontier with mild bees like the Italian strain so the invading African bees would lose their aggressiveness when crossing with them.

The African bees, which have spread from central Brazil northward, cause several deaths per year in the neighboring country.

Berlin Seeking More Women Bus Drivers

BERLIN (UPI) — West Berlin's women bus drivers have proved themselves so good that the city transportation company is seeking more of them.

It hired two women as drivers last November and now has 13 out of a force of 4,219.

There are 63 female conductors out of a force of 1,300.

WHERE TO LIVE? — Though some elderly persons decide to keep their old home and others opt for apartment or condominium living, many more are choosing "retirement" communities which offer a wide range of recreational activities and the companionship of people of similar ages.

LIFE AFTER 65

Housing Can Be A Big Problem

By JACK GOURLAY
Associated Press
(Eighth of ten articles)

Two-thirds of Americans over age 65 own their own home, but with the family gone, the house may be too large, too expensive and too difficult to maintain.

Therefore, the question, "To move or not to move," looms large. Especially when you consider that a major share of retirement income goes into housing costs. The choices open to you at age 65 or older must be given a considerable amount of thought. Aside from the economics of the situation, other factors, such as emotional ties with the community, social relationships, and personal satisfactions, must be considered.

In the past, the old homestead generally contained a separate wing for the grandparents. The old people felt needed and useful and such living arrangements tended to create a stable family society.

In today's tight housing situation, things are different. It is practically impossible to find the space or to afford it.

But even granted the space, the problems inherent in group living and person-to-person relationships may prove to be too much, especially in those cases where there has been an excessive dependence of parent on children or vice-versa.

Most older people prefer not to live with their child's family, and studies have shown that you may well stay healthier and live longer and happier if you maintain your own home, whatever it may be.

If circumstances prevent you from maintaining your former home, or if it is too far away from where your children live and you want to be near them, a small apartment nearby is likely to be a better solution than doubling up. At least, then you can have your own things and lead your own life.

Think twice about tearing up your roots; selling an old house can be a devastating emotional experience. From the logical standpoint, it might make sense to sell, but one who is used to his own home may be in for a shock when he finds himself in a smaller generally rather confining apartment. The experience can affect one's physical and mental health to the point where one becomes obsessed with escaping.

In such a situation, it would be far better to stay put, even if the financial cost is greater, because in the end it will mean less wear and tear, less mental anguish, and less unhappiness.

If you can't make up your mind about moving, it would be advisable to stay put for several months to see how retirement works out at the old homestead. Far too many have pulled up their roots, planted them somewhere else and regretted it. Many have found it more difficult than anticipated to establish the same sense of belonging in a new community than they enjoyed in their former one.

If you are serious about making a change, spend some time researching the possibilities open to you. Don't be hasty. Visit the areas you think you might want to live in, get the feel for the new community. Rent a place and live there for several months, get acquainted with the people and facilities. Look into what it has to offer in recreation and health facilities, shopping, transportation and so on. Get first-hand, on-the-spot information. Find out what the weather is really like. Check into the cost-of-living, taxes — local and state — on automobile, property, sales, inheritance, luxury and excise. Also, think through the specific type of housing you would prefer: a house, a co-op apartment, condominium, a mobile home, or a "retirement" community. Each of these has certain advantages and disadvantages. These must be weighed according to how they fit into your needs and desires.

Whatever you do, don't be taken in by fancy advertising, and don't buy "sight unseen." Go and try it. If you can't do that, at least ask the developer for an official "property report." This is required by law in most states. If you can't get one from the broker or developer, forget it.

Check on the reputation of the developer or broker with the Better Business Bureau in the community you are interested in. And, before signing on the dotted line, be sure to check things out with your lawyer.

Questions to ask before deciding to move (add up the pluses and minuses):

Do my present home and community suit my notion of a good life in the future?

Do I now have convenient access to transportation, shopping; medical care, church, entertainment and recreation, educational and cultural facilities of interest to me?

Will I be embarrassed to live in my present home on retirement income?

Does the old house impose too much of a workload on me? Should I move for health reasons?

Would I be able to adjust to a new situation at my age?

How much will I really miss my old friends?

Will I make new friends as easily as I used to?

What can I gain by moving — socially, economically, or otherwise?

What could I lose by making the change?

If the move doesn't work out, can I afford to relocate again?

NEW UNIFORM MEAT IDENTITY PROGRAM AT SAFEWAY

You'll notice changes in some of the names on meat labels in our cases. We have adopted a new program under which meat retailers will use uniform names for the different cuts of meat they sell. In addition to helping you identify cuts, the plan also aids in selecting proper cooking methods. If, for example, the label shows a cut to be a steak or roast from Beef Loin or Beef Rib, dry heat cooking methods such as roasting, broiling and frying are recommended. For most other beef, moist cooking methods such as braising or cooking in liquid are recommended. Some tender cuts of beef not marked Loin or Rib may be cooked with dry heat but it is best to check your cookbook on these.

Historical Building Law Is Eyed

By ERNEST MURPHY

Petaluma's proposed historical building preservation ordinance received close scrutiny last night from the planning commission, although action was postponed until April 2.

Between now and then, the Mayor's Select Committee on Historical Preservation will meet with the planners in an effort to resolve questions which arose at last night's public hearing.

"We're certainly in favor of having an ordinance of this type," planning commission chairman Rev. G. Roland Bond said. "It would be a mistake to construe our continuing it as a negative response."

Commission member Mervin S. Waters said he feared the ordinance could result in improper "legislation of private property' because in its present form it requires consent of 51 per cent of the property owners in a given area for creation of an historical district.

"When 51 per cent can take in the other 49 per cent, you're leaving yourself open to problems," Waters warned.

Planning director Frank B. Gray told him that property owners who objected to landmark status would "almost certainly" be excluded when historical district boundaries are drawn up.

The ordinance, as originally proposed by the mayor's committee, called for creation of an historical preservation commission which would be empowered to designate both individual buildings and districts as historical landmarks. No architectural changes would then be allowed in the designated areas without approval of the commission.

Gray presented an amended form of the ordinance last night which replaced the commission with a committee appointed either by the mayor and council or by the planning commission.

The less-authoritative committee was substituted for the originally proposed commission after discussion with planning commission members earlier.

While either body would be mainly advisory in nature, the committee would be less autonomous than the commission, making recommendations to the planning commission rather than being essentially equal to it.

John Frisbee of San Francisco, treasurer for the nonprofit National Trust for Historical Preservation, told the planners that the idea that historical landmarks are an economic liability to their owners and neighborhoods is generally false.

"There's no way to categorically say whether the establishment of landmarks and districts in Petaluma would be beneficial or detrimental," he said. "But evidence from other cities shows that it usually is beneficial."

A homeowner objected to the proposed ordinance's enforcement provisions, which would allow city officials to inspect designated buildings to insure they are maintained properly.

Gray told him the city already has that authority through its present zoning ordinance.

Another resident, who said he himself lives happily in an older home, callhd the enforcement clause evidence of "a touch of fanaticism," and said that the word enforcement "scares me for some reason."

Planning commissioner Fred V. Mattei said he wished to study the proposal longer because "nobody's explained to me what this will do in commercial districts."

About 50 persons were at city hall last night to hear the ordinance presented.

The Petaluma Planning Commission also:

WATER — Declared Petaluma Water Commission's request for 17 million gallons of water per day from the Cotati-Russian River aqueduct conforms with policies adopted in the city general plan.

SCHOOL — Approved expansion of Petaluma Children's Park, a private school at 137 Payran Street which requested a use permit for an existing second building on the school grounds.

DWELLING — Authorized Tore Kvilaas to build a second home on his oversized lot at 802 Sixth Street.

SETBACK — Continued until April 2 a reqquest by Manuel Pacheco for a variance to allow a six-foot rear setback instead of the usual 25 feet for the apartment he plans to build in the 700 block of G Street. The delay was to insure all neighbors are notified of his plans in case they object.

Lawyers Engage In Gun Battle

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (UPI) — One lawyer was dead today and another seriously injured after they took a heated courtroom argument outside the court, into the streets and shot out their differences with pistols.

Antonio Ayala de Landeros was dead and Teodoro Ochoa Quinones injured in the gun battle that took place outside a state court here.

An unidentified woman was also wounded by accident.

Authorities said the two lawyers challenged each other to a duel after heated words in the courtroom.

Seoul's Warning To Streakers

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — U.S. military authorities in South Korea warned today American streakers will face a stiff penalty under Korean laws, if arrested.

The warning came after a South Korean police announcement that streakers would be charged with public indecency and face up to one year in prison or a fine of about $100.

The warning reminded that all U.S. forces in Korea and their dependents that they are subject to Korean laws.

SWALLOW GREETER — Tom Sheil, sporting a super black eye, looked a little out of place in the role of a monk yesterday during a pageant to welcome the swallows back to Mission San Juan Capistrano. Tom, 8, was in the pageant as part of the Fiesta de las Golondrinas. The swallows arrived at 9:45 a.m. and the mission bells bonged out the news.

'Annexation Fee' Studied By Petaluma City Council

Petaluma officials are considering an "annexation fee" as a means of controlling growth and paying for city services.

The proposal was aired at a council meeting Monday by City Mgr. Robert H. Meyer, according to city clerk Lillian Nommsen, and the council decided to study it further before considering action on it.

As outlined by Meyer, developers of residential land brought into the city would pay a fee of $1,078.19 an acre, with industrial and commercial properties paying more.

The money would be used to support fire and police service, public works projects, city hall expenses and library facilities.

Meyer told the council such a fee might prevent the need for future bond issues and increased muncipal debt.

But some city officials anticipate massive legal problems if Meyer's novel idea goes into effect, mainly because the same services are now paid for by sales and property taxes.

The fee is not to be confused with the "bedroom tax" in Petaluma and other cities through which developers pay a fee for each bedroom they build to finance recreation facilities in the area. The current tax in Petaluma ranges from $20 for a one-bedroom house up to a maximum of $80, and the council is also considering increasing this tax.

The Petaluma City Council also:

REZONING — Rezoned a 7.4-acre tact near the Sonoma-Marin fairgrounds from single-family residential to planned unit development to allow the Connoly Development Co. to build 50 duplex units.

TRANSIT — Authorized a claim to the Metropolitan Transportation Commission to insure Petaluma receives its full $191,000 entitlement for this year as guaranteed by the Transportation Development Act of 1971.

PAINT — Awarded a contract to John C. Backer of Penngrove to paint the Five Corners community center for $2,243. Backer was lowest of four bidders.

LOT SPLIT — Authorized Larry Venturi to divide into four his lot near Shuman Road, and granted him permission to build a road to provide access.

Back To Studies

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Israel said it permitted 265 students from the occupied Gaza Strip and northern Sinai to transfer to Egypt Monday to resume studies there.

Inner Feelings To Be Discussed

Members of the Inner Peace Movement will lecture on "inner knowing, inner feeling, inner seeing and inner hearing on two occasions this month in Marin.

The first lecture will be at 8 p.m. Friday at the Bank of Marin, 1400 Grant Avenue, and second at 8 p.m. March 29 at the Corte Madera Library.

No Appeal On Water Hookup Ban

Marin Municipal Water District directors last night made no move to appeal a judge's ruling striking down the district's moratorium on new water connections.

The board met in closed session for approximately 50 minutes, then announced it had not acted to appeal Judge E. Warren McGuire's decision.

McGuire unofficially ruled the connection ban illegal last week, but his formal decision and findings are not expected to come for at least 30 days. After that, the district will have 60 days to appeal the ruling to a higher court.

Board President Jack R. Felson hinted, however, that an appeal may be forthcoming. He said the board had instructed its attorney to "take whatever actions are necessary to preserve the (district's) right to appeal."

He also suggested that the four-man board may wait until after an election to fill the seat vacated by the recent resignation of Director Ronald T. Stafford.

"We do have an election June 4," Felson said after announcing the lack of board action.

In other business, the board heard Donat B. Brice and James R. Cofer discuss desalinization of sea water. Brice and Cofer noted the price of desalting water is expensive and costs about $300 per acre foot. (Water in the district costs presently approximately $134 an acre foot).

The experts also noted that it would cost about $6 million to build a desalting plant in Marin and said that there is very little state or federal money available for such a project.

The discussion was the first in a series of sessions on possible future sources of water for Marin Municipal.

Hijacker Is Given 50-Year Sentence

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A Washington, D.C., parking lot attendant has been sentenced to 50 years in federal prison for his part in a 1972 skyjacking.

The defendant, Michael S. Green, 35, was convicted last June 19 of helping hijack a National Airlines 727 here on July 12, 1972. His alleged accomplice in the hijacking has not been tried because of his mental condition.

Sausalito Delays Action On Land Freeze Policy

A decision on a proposal to freeze development in areas recommended for purchase by the City of Sausalito as open space was postponed last night by the city council.

Councilmen agreed to consider the measure at a meeting April 2, after a citizens' open space committee determines the soonest date that an open space bond election can be put before voters.

Proposed by Councilman Violeta Autumn, the freeze would affect three areas recommended as green zones in the open space element of the city general plan. They are the south ridgelands, Cypress Ridge and the Glen, totaling about 46 acres.

The moratorium was inspired by the recent approval by the community appearances advisory board of architectural plans for a single-family home in the Glen, a 20-000-square-foot area with a creek, small pond and overhanging bay trees.

Consideration of a request by Mrs. Autumn to reverse the advisory board's approval was postponed along with the moratorium plan.

Several members of the audience protested the proposed freeze until there is a final determination on which areas will be included in the open space measure and how much they will cost.

City Atty. Leland H. Jordan said a moratorium would be appropriate only if the city had embarked on adefinite program to buy the suggested open space areas.

City Mgr. Thomas P. McKenzie told councilmen a citizens' committee formed to review the open space parcels and to promote a bond election for their purchase cannot have the ballot measure ready in time for the June 4 election. He said the earliest would be in November, unless the city opted to bear the cost of a special election.

A member of the citizens group that produced the open space element adopted by councilmen in January, Mrs. Autumn criticized the former council for forming a second committee to review the open space parcels. She charged that the second committee is undoing the work of the first.

Her argument was supported by Dale Hawkins, a member of the current citizen group, who said its members recently voted to delete the glen from the open space proposal.

Councilman Leonard F. Rappa opposed waiting until November for an election and urged that the bond issue be decided by voters as soon as possible. "I favor getting this damn thing straightened out," he declared. "If it takes a special election, then I am willing to pay for it . . . "

The bond measure will be discussed at a meeting of the citizens' committee at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the fire house on Johnson Street.

Maddox Treated For Nose Bleed

ATLANTA (UPI) — Lt. Gov. Lester Maddox was in satisfactory condition at Ponce de Leon Infirmary today after being admitted yesterday with a "recurring nose bleed."

Hospital officials said the 58-year-old Democratic candidate for governor would be kept through the end of the week for observation and might require surgery later to correct the condition.

Maddox was also hospitalized in 1970 while he was governor for removal of a kidney stone.

Council Declares Impact Report On Schoonmaker Plans Null, Void

Planning commission approval of the environmental impact report for the $40 million Schoonmaker development proposed for the Sausalito waterfront was declared null and void last night by the city council.

On a 3-to-2 vote, Leonard F. Rappa and Sally Stanford dissenting, councilmen overturned the planning commission's March 13 acceptance of the impact statement.

Because the approval came after the city council slapped a freeze on waterfront development two days earlier, the planners were beyond their legal jurisdiction in acting on the matter, said City Atty. Leland H. Jordan.

Jordan added that because the commission acted illegally, it would not be necessary for the council to rescind the approval.

But councilmen did anyway, over the objection of Rappa, who claimed council action would confuse the matter legally.

Schoonmaker representative Steve Siskind protested that were it not for several delays by the slow moving planning commission, the impact report would have been approved weeks before the moratorium.

He said approval of the report did not give Schoonmaker permission to build anything on the waterfront and that rescinding it would serve no purpose.

"I don't know about the legal position," he said. "But I do know what is fair."

Plans by the O'Meara-Chandler Co. for the Schoonmaker property in the Marinship area call for residential, recreational and visitor developments.

The Sausalito City Council also:

TAXI — Continued until April 2 a request by the Yellow Cab Co. for a fare increase of 10 cents per mile.

BUILDING — Continued until April 2 consideration of the uniform building code, the uniform code for the abatement of dangerous buildings and the uniform housing code, all 1973 editions.

TRAFFIC STUDY — Set a special meeting for Tuesday to hear a report on the scope and cost of a traffic study. Time and place are to be announced.

CENTRAL SCHOOL — Set a special meeting for 5 p.m. Wednesday to review plans for the new city office complex at Central School.

Mill Valley Year-Round School Poll

Chances of launching a year-round calendar in a Mill Valley school looked slim today after a school district survey showed that parents are largely opposed to the program.

The district's alternative calendar committee reported that at only one school, Marin Terrace, did a majority of parents answering the survey vote for the year-round calendar. The margin in favor of the program there was very slim, with 65 "yes" votes and 55 "no."

At other schools, parents strongly vetoed the program, in a few cases by 3-to-2 vote. However at Homestead School where teachers had been very interested in year-round school, the calendar lost by only three votes.

Complete results are:

Homestead — Yes, 59; No, 62; invalid, two; 137 mailed out.

The new calendar would consist of four cycles of nine weeks of school each alternating with three-week vacations and including a seven-week summer holiday.

No More Gas Cans Allowed On Buses

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — No longer will persons carrying filled gasoline cans be allowed aboard buses and streetcars in San Francisco.

Superintendent Carl Barton said yesterday there have been occasions when motorists, apparently stranded when their cars ran out of gas, attempted to board transit vehicles with filled gasoline containers. But because of the danger, Barton said, this no longer will be permitted.

TURNING TO SPRING

What better place to enjoy early spring weather than swinging from an old tire hung from a tall tree? That was the opinion yesterday of Kim and Debbie Bostic of Greensburg, Ind., as they enjoyed a little springtime fun.

Heynneman Selected As Sausalito Mayor

By PAUL LIBERATORE

Before a full audience of citizens assembled in the auditorium at Central School, the Sausalito City Council last night ducked behind closed doors to elect the city's new mayor.

Councilmen returned to the room after about 15 minutes to announce that Evert H. Heynneman, 39, is the new mayor, replacing Robin Sweeny. Mrs. Sweeny was chosen vice mayor.

The unusual procedure was protested by only one councilman, Violeta Autumn. She maintained that naming a mayor is not a personnel matter, but the election of an official, which would be a matter of public knowledge.

"I was ready to nominate Evert Heynneman, but I was told that unless there was an executive session, the other people would not vote," she said, and in the next breath reported: "Mrs. Sweeny said to me on the phone that she would never vote for Mr. Heynneman because he loses his temper."

With that, she agreed to participate in the private meeting because "I want to hear what goes on there — but I do so under protest."

Mrs. Sweeny justified the closed session by saying that the council might also want to appoint councilmen to the city finance committee and other bodies. No such appointments were announced, however.

City Atty. Leland H. Jordan told the Independent-Journal he believed the council was within the legal bounds of the Ralph M. Brown Act to meet privately, and that the results of the mayoral vote did not have to be made public. They were not.

Councilmen declined to reveal the voting results when asked by reporters.

Newly elected councilmen Autumn and Leonard F. Rappa made brief statements about their upcoming terms. Mrs. Autumn, a staunch foe of developers during her terms on the city planning commission, said tongue-in-cheek: "I am sure I will make myself as popular on the city council as I did on the planning commission."

Rappa, taking his council seat for the first time after being sworn into office Friday, pledged to get accomplished the things the city has not been able to accomplish for a long time. He declined to take his council seat last Wednesday, citing possible conflict of interest. An attorney, he represented several persons with law suits pending against the city and said he would petition the state Supreme Court for a decision on the conflict question.

Before last night's meeting, however, Rappa said he had divested himself of the suits to avoid the long process of petitioning the supreme court.

Heynneman, chief planner for the San Francisco Housing Authority and a former member of the Sausalito Planning Commission, said his chief objective as mayor will be to begin "a coordinated planning process for important issues, avoiding the fragmented planning methods of the past."

A resident of the city 12 years, Heynneman was elected to the council in 1972. He and his wife and daughter live on Sausalito Boulevard.

Gnoss Field Expansion Vote Ends In 2-2 Tie In Novato

The Novato City Council's narrow 3-2 backing of the master plan for expansion of Gnoss Field last week was reduced to a 2-2 tie last night. (Another Novato City Council story, page 1.)

Mayor David Price Jones, who voted last week in favor of the plan, changed his vote to "abstaining" last night because of a conflict of interest.

Jones said since his initial vote he discovered that a member of the law firm he is associated with will be filing litigation arising from the plan.

The council then revoted, with Gail Wilhelm and David E. Milano favoring the airport master plan and Fred F. Ruegg and Dorothy P. Young opposing.

Marin County, which operates the airport north of Novato, had asked for city comment on the plan for a $7.3 million expansion by 1992, including extension of the existing runway and construction of a new runway.

The Novato City Council also:

STOP SIGN — Unanimously approved four-way stop signs at Reposa Vista and Novato Boulevard in response to a petition filed last month with 130 signatures and appeals last night from about half a dozen persons who stressed the traffic hazards at the intersection.

DOWNTOWN PLAN — Referred to the planning commission, the downtown plan committee's recommendations for revising the downtown plan and program, including changing designation of the Pinheiro land, west of Highway 101 and north of the city, from regional shopping center to "community-level" shopping center.

ABAG — Appointed Gail M. Wilhelm as the city's representative to the Association of Bay Area Governments, with Milano as alternate by a 4-1 vote. Ruegg, who dissented, described the association as "proliferating bureaucracy" and said the city should consider dropping out of it.

OVERSIZED VEHICLES — Adopted an ordinance banning overnight parking on residential streets of vehicles more than 7 feet wide or 20 feet long by a 2-1 vote with Mayor Jones, who wanted tougher restrictions, dissenting. New councilmen Wilhelm and Milano didn't vote because they weren't on the council when hearings were held on the ordinance.

COUNCIL MEETINGS — Introduced an ordinance to set council meetings four times a month, with general business to be conducted on first and third Tuesdays and hearings on second and fourth Tuesdays; a system that has been on a trial basis for three months.

TENNIS COURTS — Awarded Bresnan-Dalecio Inc. of San Rafael, lowest of four bidders, a contract to construct two tennis courts and install court lighting at Pioneer Memorial Park, with Ruegg dissenting because he opposed including the lighting. The cost will be $31,254.

COMMITTEE TERMS — Set June 30 as the expiration date for terms of city committee members.

PARKS AND RECREATION — Approved a survey by the parks and recreation department to determine preferences of residents as an aid to revising the recreation element of the Novato General Plan. Ruegg dissented because he didn't believe the survey would bring "a sufficient return."

DRAINAGE — Approved plans for drainage projects at Sunset Parkway and Lynwood Drive, along Machin Avenue between Grant Avenue and Vallejo Avenue, and along Leafwood Avenue between Rowland Boulevard and Sunset Parkway.

LYNWOOD SCHOOL — Approved plans for an irrigation system at Lynwood School grounds, where either two softball fields or possibly one softball field and one Little League field will be installed.

CITY MANAGER — Rejected a proposal by Jones for a public hearing to get the views of residents on what type of city manager "the community would like us to look for," but invited residents to send their views in writing. Arthur D. Little, management consultants, of San Francisco, is scheduled to give the city a list of the top five candidates for the post vacated by the resignation of Charles A. Brown March 11.

GASOLINE LINES — Sent a letter to the office of former Rep. William S. Mailliard, urging clear federal guidelines for gasoline service station operators to help shorten lines at gasoline stations.

TAX COMMITTEE — Appointed Ruegg to the tax equity committee of the Marin Council of Mayors and Councilmen.

NEXT MEETING —Adjourned to noon today at city hall to discuss a management study with consultants from California State College, Hayward, with the public hearing meeting to be held at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Novato Community House.

CAMPAIGNS '74

Hill Seeks No Attack Campaign

A Alan Hill of San Rafael, candidate for the Republican nomination in the Ninth Assembly District, yesterday called on his three fellow opponents in the June primary to avoid attacks on one another.

In letters to each opponent, Hill said what was needed was "a campaign directed to issues and facts rather than one directed to personalities. The need for unity within our party has never been greater," he said, adding "unity is essential for victory in November."

Other candidates in the primary are Gerald J. Hood of Mill Valley, Susan A. Delaplane of Tiburon and Albert J. Schloegel of Rohnert Park.

CANDIDATES — Marin Alternative will hold a candidates night for the 10 contestants in the Assembly race at 8 p.m. on Tuesday in Olney Hall, College of Marin, Kentfield.

CONNICK — Harry A. Connick of San Rafael, candidate for Marin County district attorney, has opened campaign headquarters at 1408 Fourth Street and 4340 Redwood Highway, both San Rafael.

MEYER — Coffees for Peter C. Meyer of San Rafael, candidate for Marin County clerk, will be held at 10 a.m. March 29 at the Mill Valley home of Richard G. Burns, 49 Millay Place, and 7:30 p.m. March 31 at the San Anselmo home of Gene Turtle, 38 Jordan Avenue.

SUPERINTENDENT — A debate between incumbent Virgil S. Hollis and challenger Joseph D. Gargiulo, candidates for Marin County superintendent of schools, was postponed from today to next Wednesday's noon luncheon of the San Rafael Lions at the Elks Club.

CONTROLLER — Marian W. La Follette, candidate for the Republican nomination for state controller, has pledged to limit contributions to her campaign to a maximum of $75. Also seeking the nomination is Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael.

Wheat Shortage Talk Called Hoax

CLOVIS, N. M. (UPI) — An official of the New Mexico Farm and Livestock Bureau said that predictions of high bread prices and a wheat shortage were attempts to "perpetuate a hoax upon the American public."

"The fact is that the bakers, who have depended in the past upon easily obtained government stored surpluses, are simply trying to assure themselves of a cheap supply of wheat," said L. E. Davis, vice president of the New Mexico bureau.

ADLAI E. STEVENSON III
Incumbent U.S. Senator

Stevenson, Burditt Win Easily

CHICAGO (UPI) — Incumbent Democrat Adlai E. Stevenson III and Republican George Burditt, a former state legislator, won easy victories yesterday in their campaigns for nomination to the U.S. Senate post Stevenson now holds.

With 10,204 of the state's 11,312 precincts reporting, Stevenson led Dakin Williams, brother of playwright Tennessee Williams, by 758,872 to 160,552 and Burditt was 355,096 to 78,901 ahead of Lar (America First) Daly, perennial candidate in the Republican primary.

A proposed Regional Transit Authority (RTA), which would set up an overall transportation system for the six northeastern Illinois counties around and including the city of Chicago, got approval on the strength of the Chicago vote.

There was strong opposition in outlying Cook County towns and in other counties. With only a handful of precincts missing, the RTA approval vote was 675,597 and the "no" votes 652,622.

Mayor Richard J. Daley's organization withstood an attack in the principal Cook County contest, the battle for assessor. Daley forces elected Thomas M. Tully, a young politician, over Alderman Edward Vrdolyak, piling up 426,087 votes to 208,584.

Vrdolyak had assailed scandals and the handling of tax levy matters in the assessor's office under a long succession of Daley followers.

Daley also saw his favored candidates for the state legislature win out in many cases over those favored by fellow Democrat Gov. Daniel Walker, who has been feuding with the Daley organization over its legislative choices.

San Quentin Stabbing Is Reported

A former Death Row inmate at San Quentin was severely wounded last evening when he was stabbed twice in the chest while returning to his cell after dinner.

Prison officials said Massie, now lodged with the prison's general population, was attacked in the rotunda of the West Block at 6:15 p.m.

An unknown assailant stabbed him with an ice pick-type weapon, officers said. Massie managed to walk a few steps to get help from a guard, although he was bleeding badly.

A sharpened screwdriver was found in the yard near the block later, but no motive or suspect for the assault had been found, according to William D. Nyberg, prison information officer.

Massie was received at the prison in 1965 after a conviction for first degree murder and robbery in Los Angeles County. He shot a woman to death in connection with a robbery.

After Death Row was closed because of the revocation of the death penalty, Massie was moved to the prison's general population.

Schools Show Attendance Hike

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Fewer than half of San Francisco's public school children showed up for classes yesterday —the 11th day of the Teacher's Union strike.

School officials said 36,186 were present but that 39,094 students were absent. Attendance was up about 2,100 from Monday, due mainly to improved school bus service, officials said.

About 68 per cent of the district's teachers reported for work yesterday.

Lawyers For SLA Duo To Keep Fighting For TV Appearance

OAKLAND (AP) — Despite one court setback, attorneys for two alleged Symbionese Liberation Army members vowed today to keep fighting for a televised statement which their clients claim could help win Patricia Hearst's freedom.

"We'll argue strenuously that this court is within its rights to order a news conference if it sees fit," attorney James Jenner told Municipal Court Judge Stafford Buckley who delayed a ruling.

A judge in another county denied the request yesterday. A televised appearance requires the permission of judges in both counties where the men face charges.

Buckley has been scheduled to rule today on the television request by purported SLA "soldiers" Joseph Remiro, 27, and Russell Little, 24, charged here with the Nov. 6 assassination of schools Supt. Marcus Foster.

But the judge postponed the hearing until Monday because several defense attorneys were involved in a change of venue hearing today.

"I'm still optimistic," Jenner said after the brief session.

Contra Costa County Superior Court Judge Sam Hall ruled yesterday that a television appearance by the defendants could hurt their chances for a fair trial.

The kidnaped girl's father, newspaper executive Randolph A. Hearst, expressed disappointment at Hall's ruling.

'Without Problems?'

LONDON (UPI) — The British Journal of Criminology carries an article in its current edition entitled: "Embezzlement without problems."

A Big Forest Fire In Florida

NAPLES, Fla. (UPI) — A deliberately set forest fire that an official said could "burn right to Miami" blazed across thousands of acres of southwest Florida swampland today.

Cez Wass de Czega, southwest Florida district forester, said it was unlikely the small force of men battling the fire could contain it until it reached a water conservation canal, probably late today or Thursday.

"Hopefully, the canal will prevent the fire from getting into the sawgrass areas," he said. "If it doesn't the fire could burn right to Miami."

The fire was by far the largest and most threatening of several burning in the Big Cypress Swamp area.

KENNETH MEADE

Punch-Out Puts Meade In Hospital

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Assemblymen Kenneth Meade of Oakland has been hospitalized with a facial cut after a scuffle with fellow Democrat Louis Papan of Daly City.

Accounts of what actually happened in the Meade vs. Papan encounter varied yesterday and neither man wanted to talk about it.

But Papan confirmed — with nods of his head during an interview — that a pushing match had occurred. Asked if he and Meade intended to shake hands and make up, he told a reporter: "I hope to. That would be up to Mr. Meade."

One unconfirmed version making the rounds of the Capitol corridors said Meade angrily tossed a cup of coffee onto Papan at the height of an argument, triggering a slugging match.

Meade was examined by a neurosurgeon at Sutter Memorial Hospital, said Assemblyman Bill Lockyer, who accompanied the lawmaker to the hospital.

A hospital spokesman said, "His condition is satisfactory. He has a minor laceration over the right eye. He's going to be admitted for observation, I presume for overnight."

The hospital official, who declined to be quoted by name, had no comment on the report of an examination by a neurosurgeon.

Lockyer, D-San Leandro, said Meade was unconscious for five minutes. Lockyer said Meade fell against a desk.

Papan, sporting what appeared to be the beginnings of a minor black eye, refused to confirm reports that the two exchanged punches.

"I'd prefer you to talk to Mr. Meade about it, really," Papan said.

Seat Belts On Buses Are Asked

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Legislation aimed at requiring seat belts on buses has been introduced by Assemblyman Edwin L. Z'berg, D-Sacramento.

(Cost of buying just the seat belts for Golden Gate Transit's bus fleet was estimated at some $200,000, plus installation costs, in a quick guess by H. Donald White, manager of the system.

(Asked for his reactions to the legislation, White said, "none printable." In addition to the cost and time to install them he said, belts would prove awkward to use. Youngsters would "beat each other with them," he added.)

Z'berg's measure asks $50,000 to study the feasibility of installing seat belts on buses and to develop standards to qualify belts for buses used for schools, farm labor and public transit.

Citing national and state policies that seat belts be provided in private autos, Z'berg said "the paying customer riding on a bus is entitled to no less a protection."

A Greyhound bus accident near Sacramento last year, he said, could have resulted in fewer deaths and injuries if seat belts had been available. Thirteen died in the tragedy.

The most wonderful thing that ever happened to wheat.

Senate Cuts $29,500 From Fund For New Marin Patrol Office

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A $417,900 appropriation proposed in next fiscal year's budget to build a new California Highway Patrol headquarters in Marin County has been trimmed by the Senate.

As recommended by Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post, the upper house cut $29,500 from the item. The Assembly has not acted yet on the proposal.

The patrol's present headquarters in Corte Madera was designed for a force of 36 officers. The staff, however, now totals 79, and is scheduled to expand further to 100.

Post concurred with the administration's finding that the present building is too small, but recommended the fund cut on the ground $29,500 already had been allocated in the current budget for working drawings for a new headquarters.

The patrol, in any event, will have to give up its present site when its lease expires in four years.

The current budget also allocated $180,000 to acquire a new site. The General Services Department several years ago asked for $222,000 for land purchase. If additional funds are needed, the Public Works Board can augment the allocation by up to 25 per cent and the Joint Budget Committee can raise it by 50 per cent.

About a half-dozen sites in Central Marin are under consideration. The list does not include the Golden Gate Bridge District's Larkspur ferry terminal site. The district has hoped to get the patrol to use a corner of its 25-acre terminal to reduce its own security costs for the terminal.

Subdivision Request Is Planned

The San Anselmo School District board last night said it will seek city approval to subdivide the 2.7-acre Isabel Cook School site into three parcels.

A section of the site on which district offices are located would be retained by the district, while another section, including the school's multiuse facility, would be offered to the city for about $50,000, according to Supt. Frank R. Elliott.

Trustees told Elliott to ask the city planning commission to zone a third section of the site to commercial district, to ease its sale on the general market.

The superintendent said he will seek city approval of the proposal next month.

He noted that the Isabel Cook School is being closed due to sagging enrollment.

Golan Heights Situation Explosive

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The Golan Heights front exploded for the ninth consecutive day today into 90 minutes of sporadic bombardments from Syrian guns that poured up to 10 shells at a time into Israeli positions. The firing was directed at five locations in the northern and southern sectors of the bulge Israel pushed into Syria in the October 1973 war.

The shelling caused no Israeli casualties, a military spokesman said in Tel Aviv, and the Israelis did not return the fire.

"The incidents today are lighter than yesterday," a spokesman said. "They have apparently learned their lesson because we scored some good hits yesterday (Tuesday).

An Israeli at the front said, "the last days it was a real war. They were shooting hundreds of shells and we did the same thing. So it's a war, a real war of attrition. The Syrians want to take as much area as possible before the (troop disengagement) negotiations begin."

None of the shells fired today marched past the 1967 cease-fire line onto the part of the heights captured by Israel in the 1967 war.

A Syrian communique in Damascus reported a 2½-hour engagement on the heights, which it said began after Israeli armored units tried to advance.

Israel closed the narrow asphalt roads in the Heights to all civilian traffic in expectation of a ninth consecutive day of artillery bombardments by Syrian gunners.

The military command permitted civilians on the 17 settlements dotting the Israeli occupied territory west of the 1967 cease-fire line to work in the fields.

CHET HUNTLEY

Chet Huntley Loses Fight With Cancer

BOZEMAN, Mont. (AP) — Former television newscaster Chet Huntley, who teamed with David Brinkley for 14 years on NBC-TV's nightly Huntley-Brinkley Report, died today.

Huntley, 62, had been suffering from abdominal cancer.

His widow, Tippy Huntley, said he died at 2:20 a.m.

He had been undergoing periodic treatment and underwent surgery in January.

Huntley resigned from NBC in 1970 to develop Big Sky Inc. of Montana, a massive resort and ski complex in the Gallatin Canyon southwest of Bozeman.

Huntley and Brinkley were accidentally teamed by NBC at the 1956 national political conventions. They went so well together their show became part of American folklore.

Besides top ratings, Huntley-Brinkley won every major television news award, including seven Emmies and two George Foster Peabody awards. Huntley was the serious one, Brinkley the wit.

When Huntley quit in 1970 to return to his native Montana, Brinkley said it was at last easier to tell which was which.

Huntley was born in Cardwell, Mont., son of a telegrapher.

In 1934 he got a $10-a-month job with a 100-watt radio station, KCBC, in Seattle. In addition to his salary, he got laundry service and was allowed to use sponsorship accounts to trade for food.

There was no wire service, so he bought a Seattle Star and rewrote it for a 15-minute newscast every night.

In 1938 he went to CBS in Los Angeles, as correspondent for 11 Western states. In 1951 he switched to ABC in Los Angeles, and four year later moved to NBC in New York.

He was married twice. He had two daughters by his first wife, Ingrid Rolin. They were divorced in 1959. His second wife was Tipton Stringer, once a weather lady for a Washington TV station.

Reagan Believes Streaking Silly

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan thinks streaking is just a silly college fad that everybody hopes will soon go away.

He told high school students at his weekly question and answer conference streaking is even sillier than such former collegiate crazes as gold fish swallowing and stuffing telephone booths.

Two Escape Prison Terms In Robbery

Two San Rafael men, said by witnesses to have held a student under a car in an attempt to run over him, . most drew prison sentences yesterday from a Marin judge.

Superior Court Judge Charles Read Best sentenced Mark Jefferson Lee, 25, and Dennis Kirk Smith, 20, to one year in jail each, but then warned:

"You are knocking loudly on the door of state prison and begging for admittance. One more incident like this and that's where you're going.

The incident Best referred to involved the beating and robbery of a 22-year-old Santa Rosa student, Kent D. Liscum, who was picked up by the pair while hitchhiking in San Rafael in December.

Lee and Smith took Liscum to a hill overlooking Highway 101, then attacked him and stole his wallet. At one point, according to witnesses, they tried to drive over him with their car.

Lee pleaded guilty to assault with a deadly weapon, while Smith pleaded guilty to armed robbery. Judge Best placed both on three years' probation.

Reservists Will Build Creek Bridge

A military reserve unit will construct a bridge over Miller Creek as a service project, the Marinwood Community Services District board has announced.

Dist. Mgr. Genevieve T. Bolding said the 132nd Engineer Battalion of California State Forces at Fort Funston has offered to build the 52-foot span, and said that construction will begin in July and be completed in September.

Cost to the district will be about $5,000 for materials, she said.

The district board Monday night approved trading a parcel of district land for a similar sized parcel on Dixie School District land to allow construction of the bridge.

The bridge has been sought by parents to span a creek pathway used b children at Miller Creek School.

In other business, the district board called for bids on tennis courts to be built at Miller Creek School.

The board next meets at 8 p.m. April 15 in the community center.

Ransom Is Paid Without Reason

DALLAS (UPI) — Jake Lauderdale paid a $3,000 ransom Monday for his wife, Lillie Wilma, only to find she had never been kidnaped.

Lauderdale told police two men reported his wife was being held hostage for $10,000. He said they settled for less when he told them $3,000 was all he could raise, then rode with him to a bank to get the money.

He made two calls to his wife and, when she didn't answer, he rushed home to find she had just returned from a shopping trip for gloves and a hat for yard work.

"I was taken. That's all there was," said the 60-year-old carpenter.

CHINESE SPECIALTIES

Hot, Spicy Dishes From A South Central Province

Hot, spicy foods are the specialty from the South Central Province of Szechwan in China. The people who moved to Taiwan from mainland China brought their recipes from each province with them, and Szechwan food differs from the Cantonese and Mandarin foods, which are more familiar to Americans.

Mrs. R. B. Kaufman of Novato was taught the recipes when she and her husband lived in Taiwan. Szechwan Province is in an area of dense tropical forests, the home of the giant Pandas on mainland China, Mrs. Kaufman said.

FRIED CHICKEN FILLET WITH PEANUTS

Cut one-pound chicken fillet into small cubes, with skin and fat removed, and mix with 1 tsp. cornstarch, ½ egg white and 1½ tsps. water. Set aside.

Then mix 1 Tbsp. mirin (a wine) or dry sherry wine, 3 Tbsps. soy sauce, ½ tsp. salt, ½ tsp. sugar, and 1 tsp. cornstarch mixed with water.

Heat 8 Tbsps. of oil and deep fry one cup raw peanuts, skinned, or unsalted roasted peanuts, until crisp. (If roasted peanuts are used, do not deep fry.) Guard against burning. Remove to a plate.

Heat 6 Tbsps. oil and fry chicken. When meat turns white, remove to a plate. Clean frying pan, heat 2 Tbsp. oil and fry 1 clove garlic, cracked; 2 slices of ginger root, 4 chili peppers, halved, or about 1 teaspoon dried hot chili; and 1 stalk of leek cut into small pieces. Add all ingredients except the peanuts and continue to fry. Stir in peanuts quickly and serve hot. Mrs. Kaufman uses an electric wok, (Chinese frying pan) for the dish.

HOT AND SOUR SOUP

Four dried mushrooms (either Chinese or black, 1 to 1½ inches in diameter; 2 squares (3 inches each) of fresh bean curd or tofu (soy bean cake); 6 Tbsp. canned bamboo shoots, ¼ pound boneless chicken, 1½ Pts. chicken stock, 1 scant Tsp. salt, 2½ Tsp. soya sauce, 5 Tsp. white vinegar, 5 Tsp. cornstarch mixed with 2½ Tbsp. cold water, one egg lightly beaten, 1 Tsp. sesame seed oil, a little ginger root and leek, one spring onion including the green top, finely chopped; and ¼ to ½ Tsp. hot pepper oil.

Prepare ahead — In a small bowl cover the mushrooms with warm water and soak 30 minutes. Pour the water off, cut and discard the tough stems of the mushrooms. Shred caps, one at a time on a chopping board. Cut them horizontally into paper thin slices and then into thin strips. Drain and rinse the bamboo shoots and bean curd and shred as fine as the mushrooms.

With a cleaver or sharp knife, trim chicken of all fat. Then shred it by slicing the meat as thin as possible and cutting the slices into narrow strips about 1½ to 2 inches long.

Combine in a large, heavy saucepan, the chicken stock, salt, soya sauce, mushrooms, bamboo shoots and chicken. Bring to a boil over a high heat and at once reduce heat to low, cover pan and simmer for three minutes.

Drop in the bean curd, pepper oil and vinegar. Bring to a boil again. Stir up mixture of cornstarch and pour into the soup.

Stir for a few seconds until the soup thickens, then slowly pour in the beaten egg, stirring gently. Remove the soup from the heat and ladle into a tureen or serving bowl. Stir in the sesame seed oil and sprinkle the top with onions. Serve at once.

STIR FRIED SNOW PEAS

Five tsp. groundnut oil or peanut oil, 6 dried Chinese mushrooms, 1 to 1½ inches in diameter with stems removed; 1 Lb. snow peas; 2 small cans of water chestnuts or 1 cup sliced in thin slices; ¼ tsp. salt; 1 tsp. sugar; and 1 Tbsp. soy sauce; 2 slices ginger root; and ½ clove garlic.

Heat the oil and put in two slices of ginger root and ½ clove of garlic. Remove from oil after one minute. Add vegetables. Stir fry for two minutes on moderately high heat so the pan is not smoking, and add remaining ingredients.

Rice can be served with this dish.

In Taiwan, Mrs. Kaufman said, the food is served on a round table with a lazy Susan in the center, with rice bowls, soup bowls and plates served for all guests.

Mrs. Kaufman learned to cook other favorite recipes in many countries as she traveled with her husband to England, Europe and Japan. She said that she tries to prepare something special each evening for the family, which includes Heidi, 7, who was born in London, and Bill, 4, who was born in Japan.

FRIED CHICKEN fillet with peanuts is prepared by Mrs. R. B. Kaufman in an electric wok in her Novato kitchen. Mrs. Kaufman learned to cook the hot, spicy Szechwan Province foods when she and her husband lived in Taiwan. She prefers to use chopsticks for stirring, as the Chinese do, so that the food can be moved around in the wok for even heat. (Photo by Bob Hax)

Crepes Filled With Spinach, Mushrooms Ideal For Brunch

Delicate homemade crepes filled with a tasty mix of spinach, mushrooms and onion have a doubly delicious topping — dairy sour cream and grated Monterey jack cheese. This is the perfect dish for brunch or a light supper.

Those who have never made crepes often think they are complicated and can be mastered only by experienced cooks. This is not so. Wholesome milk, melted butter, eggs and flour make a light batter. It takes less than two minutes to make each crepe but they do have to be baked singly, unless you have two pans going at the same time.

You can make the crepes ahead of time and store them in the refrigerator stacked and enclosed in foil or plastic wrap. Once you get into the crepe habit you'll probably wonder why you didn't try them before. They can be served for any meal with many kinds of fillings — savory or sweet.

When cooking with dairy sour cream treat it with care. For best results fold sour cream into recipes last, stirring gently. This will preserve its delicate nature while capturing its fullest taste.

CREPES A LA JACK

- 1 large onion, chopped
- ¼ pound mushrooms, sliced
- 1 medium clove garlic, minced
- 3 tablespoons butter
- 2 (10-ounce) packages frozen chopped spinach
- ¾ teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- ½ teaspoon marjoram
- Homemade crepes
- 1 pint dairy sour cream
- ¾ pound Monterey jack cheese, grated (3 cups)
- Minced parsley

Saute onion, mushrooms and garlic in butter until tender. Thaw and drain spinach, squeezing very dry. Combine spinach, salt, pepper and marjoram with onion mixture.

Salad Specialists Offer Some Favorites Gathered For Years

Salad specialists after presenting their annual Salad Bowl Luncheon and Fashion Show for so many years, the St. Raphael's School Mothers Guild offers some of the members' favorites to readers.

Their luncheon and show, to be held Tuesday at noon at the school auditorium in San Rafael, will feature over 200 salads made from favorite recipes of the members.

Mrs. William Bezy thinks that having several quarts of various dressings in her refrigerator to splash on mixed greens is a real time saver as well as a gourmet treat. Here are two of her family pleasers:

GREEN GODDESS DRESSING

In blender combine the following:

- 1 cup mayonnaise
- 1 can anchovy fillets and oil
- 1 clove pressed garlic
- ¼ cup each chopped chives, parsley
- Juice of ½ lemon
- 1½ Tbsp. tarragon white wine vinegar
- Fresh ground pepper, salt

Thin with half cup cream or milk as it blends. If the color isn't green enough, add a drop or two of green food color or more parsley and chives.

GARLIC FRENCH DRESSING

In 1 qt. jar put the following:

- ¾ cup sugar
- 1 can tomato soup
- 2 tsp. salt
- 1¼ cup oil (part olive oil)
- ¾ cup vinegar
- Sliced or pressed garlic

Shake well and refrigerate at least 24 hours.

Mrs. Joe Fitzpatrick whips up an unusual first course dinner salad with spinach, pine nuts and feta cheese as the main ingredients. It takes a little shopping ahead for ingredients, but is well worth the trouble, she said.

SALSA SALAD

- ½ can green chili salsa
- 2 pkgs. lemon gelatin
- 1¼ cup boiling water

Heat salsa in hot water, stir in lemon gelatin. Pour into individual molds. Good with turkey, chicken, ham or veal. Serves 6.

HOT CHICKEN SALAD

- 2 cups cooked chicken, diced
- 1 cup celery, diced
- 1 cup mayonnaise
- 2 cups crushed potato chips
- ½ cup almonds, slivered

Economical Italian Classical Dish

An economical meal for six to eight is this casserole with an Italian flavor, suggests Peggy Hopkins, home economist for the North Bay Division of Pacific Gas and Electric Co. in San Rafael.

ITALIAN DELIGHT

6 ounces dry wide noodles
1 pound ground beef
1 large onion, chopped
½ green pepper, chopped, or 2 tablespoons green pepper flakes
1 16-ounce can cream-style corn
1 cup canned tomatoes
1 8-ounce can tomato sauce
1 small can sliced ripe olives
1½ teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon Tabasco
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon garlic salt
2 cups shredded cheddar cheese

Cook noodles in boiling salted water for eight minutes; rinse and drain; set aside. Lightly brown meat in skillet; add onion and green pepper and cook until vegetables are limp. In large bowl combine noodles, meat mixture, and all the remaining ingredients, except 1 cup of the cheese, mixing well. Turn into greased two and one-half quart casserole. Bake in 350-degree preheated oven for 45 minutes. Sprinkle remaining cheese over top and bake about 10 minutes longer. Makes six to eight servings.

Stretches Eggs

ITALIAN DELIGHT is an easy and excellent casserole, with servings for six to eight. With vegetables and cheese included, it stretches a pound of hamburger for good economy.

SALADS

Salt and pepper to taste
1 Tbsp. onion, grated
1 Tbsp. lemon juice
½ cup grated cheese

Mix together, saving a little of potato chips, almonds and cheese for the top. Bake in 450-degree oven for 10 minutes. Serves six to eight.

From Mrs. Robert Cramer.

SPINACH SALAD

Stem, wash and drain well two bunches of spinach. Tear in bite size pieces. Before serving on individual chilled plates, toss lightly with Italian olive oil, garlic salt and fresh lemon juice to taste. Add one 4-oz. pkg. of toasted pine nuts, a few sesame seeds, and crumbled (slightly chunky) feta cheese over the top.

To toast pine nuts, put in 300-degree oven about 10 minutes until lightly browned.

STRAWBERRY-CREAM SQUARES

Dissolve two 3-ounce packages strawberry flavored gelatin in 2 cups boiling water. Add two 10-ounce packages frozen strawberries; stir occasionally until thawed. Add one 13½ oz. can crushed pineapple and 2 large ripe bananas, finely diced.

Pour half into 8x8x2-inch pan. Chill firm. Spread evenly with 1 cup dairy sour cream. Pour remaining gelatin atop. Chill firm. Cut into nine squares. Top with sour cream dollops. Good with ham or turkey.

From Mrs. Louis Giegerich.

CREPES

Spread crepes on counter and divide spinach mixture into centers. Fold in sides of each crepe and roll crepe around filling. Place seamside down in baking dish or platter. Season sour cream with a little additional salt and pepper to taste. Spoon over crepe rolls. Sprinkle with cheese and parsley. Bake uncovered in 350-degree oven 35 minutes or until hot through and light golden on top. Makes four servings.

HOMEMADE CREPES: Beat together or whir in electric blender one cup milk, one egg, quarter teaspoon salt and two-third cup flour. Melt one tablespoon butter in seven-inch crepe pan or skillet and beat into batter. To bake crepes, pour a scant quarter cup batter into pan and tilt to coat bottom. Bake about 1 minute over medium high heat until golden. Turn and bake for 30 seconds. Crepes may be made ahead, stacked, wrapped in foil and refrigerated a day or so until needed. Makes eight crepes.

Make Your Own Peanut Butter

If you have a blender, you can easily make your own peanut butter at home.

HOMEMADE PEANUT BUTTER

1 cup freshly roasted or salted peanuts
3 tablespoons peanut oil
½ teaspoon salt, if peanuts are unsalted

Put peanuts in the container of a blender and add 1½ tablespoons peanut oil. Blend the mixture until smooth, gradually adding another 1½ tablespoons of oil or enough to make the peanut butter the proper consistency. Add salt if necessary.

Makes about one cup.

B Vitamins

The B vitamins include B-1 (thaimine), B-2 (riboflavin), B-6, B-12, folic acid, niacin, pantothenic acid and biotin. As a group, B vitamins aid in good functioning of the nervous and digestive systems and also help the body release energy from food. Sources of B vitamins in general are meats, especially organ meats, whole grain or enriched breads and cereals, beans, peas and nuts.

Teen-Aged American Girls Most Concerned With Jobs

By GAY PAULEY

Then they list sex education, recreation and drug information as the next priorities.

These were some of the findings from a detailed workshop and questionaire study which the Young Women's Christian Association (YWCA) did among 1,112 girls age 15 to 19, of differing racial and ethnic backgrounds in four regions of the country.

They were El Paso, Tex., a border city with a variety of ethnic groups; Greenville, S.C., a southern industrial city; Philadelphia, a complex metropolitan area with a large black population, and South Bend, Ind., a northern city with a varied population.

The YWCA announced the results at a news conference attended by two teen-agers city. They were Margaret Chisholm, 16, and Letty Paez, 20, of El Paso; Bonnie Jones, 16, and Karen Jones, 18, of Greenville; Terri Kida, 17, and Sheila Watkins, 16, of Philadelphia; and Sharon Graham, 20, and Linda Megan, 18, of South Bend.

AMONG THE total of 1,112 girls participating, some 81 per cent listed help in finding jobs as the most needed service and in one community, the percentage was 90 per cent.

Job training ranked in top place in all racial and ethnic groups in all workshop areas.

Fifty-eight per cent of all questionnaire respondents ranked career guidance in third place as one of their greatest needs.

The teen-age women said preparation for jobs does not come early enough, clearly enough or fairly.

Some of the comments: "We need to know how to do something else beside cleaning house,""We need training for a wider variety of jobs,""Why aren't girls trained to do anything outside the house besides office work?" "Girls usually don't get any training except for secretarial or teaching jobs..."

SIXTY PER cent of the teenagers answering guestionnaires listed sex education as a need regardless of age, 65 per cent among the blacks, 72 per cent among Mexican-Americans, and 55 per cent of all whites. It was listed as a need not met by 44 per cent of all respondents.

Some individual comments: "Sex education is banned from the schools but this is where we need it because we can't hide our feelings and it isn't being taught in the homes,""What is being taught in school is just lightly studied. Everyone is too prudish and moralistic about it."

"They tell you some of the stuff, but girls are still getting pregnant. They just tell you not to."

"...I heard or thought that V.D. was something involving the kidney or the liver. I believed that, really."

Fifty-six per cent of all questionnaire respondents cited recreation as a need and 42 per cent thought it a need not met. Both sex and race discrimination were considered to be problems.

SOME 56 per cent of all questioned called for more information on and education concerning drugs. Most considered most parents to be uninformed in this area. There was a consensus that drugs are all around and the age level of users is dropping.

"You know what gets me?" said one teen-ager, summing it up. "All the little kids taking drugs and the older people sell it to them . . . it's terrible."

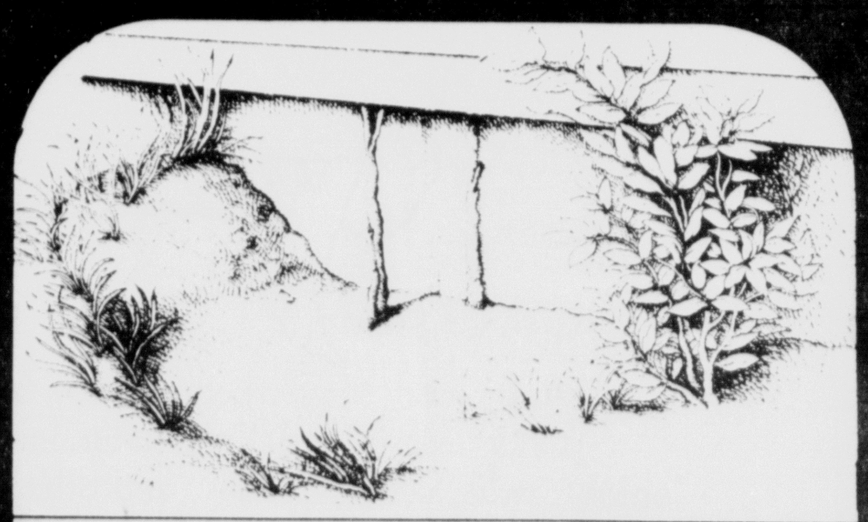
Marin Homeowner's Notebook



HIDDEN ENTRANCES TO YOUR HOME?

A home anywhere in Marin County might have several hidden entrances and some very unwanted intruders. Termites!

Mud tubes like those shown above are built by subterranean termites to sneak into Marin's nicest homes. Termites invite themselves into both new and old homes. And contrary to popular belief, they love dining at homes built on concrete-slab floors (especially ones with radiant heat). In fact, 60% of all Marin homes have termites present right now.

Once inside, the termites eat their unsuspecting hosts out of house and home. Literally.

Termites eat wood. And since these extremely social insects live in giant nests with up to 250,000 relatives, having the family up to dinner can be a very expensive proposition.

The termite workers shuttle up and down constantly, carrying bits of wood back to the nest. But they are masters at keeping their activity hidden. They work inside of walls and floors, then span open spaces with mud tubes. So a considerable portion of your house can be out to lunch before you know it!

Every homeowner in Marin should check regularly for termite mud tubes around his foundation, post footings, garage, fences, and particularly in winter, the hot water heater and furnace areas. If tubes are found, call Hinkley & Gordon immediately.

Hinkley & Gordon is a state-licensed structural pest control company. For two generations, we've been providing Marin's most expert and thorough pest control services.

The cost of a Hinkley & Gordon inspection is just $50 for the average Marin home. And it certainly beats allowing a sneak attack on your home investment.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Skeletons In Husband's Family Closet Have Bride Concerned

DEAR HELEN:

Tom and I met in September and were married in October. He's a singer, so we travel a lot. He's sweet, kind and wonderful and I love him, but. . .

When we attended his cousin's wedding, I heard about some skeletons in the closet. First, the bride was about eight months pregnant, all dressed in a white formal gown. No one seemed embarrassed but me.

Then I heard that two of Tom's nieces were also pregnant before marriage and his two nephews are on drugs. Also, his brother has been divorced four times.

Now I'm wondering if there are any other "goblins" in my husband's past. Should I question him on this? — WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED:

No! You married Tom without asking for a pedigree. Why worry about it now?

Settle for "sweet, kind and wonderful" and remember that every family has its goblins — even yours. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I like to mix when I'm at parties. My wife thinks I should stay at her side and talk to her, or as a couple. If we get separated, she sits in a corner till she catches my eye and I must either come back or we leave early, at her insistence.

I don't chase women but I enjoy mingling with a crowd, and think it ridiculous that a man and wife can't function separately when in company of others.

What's wrong with a woman who resents a — GREGARIOUS HUSBAND

DEAR HUSBAND:

Your wife may be shy, jealour or a party-hater or, perhaps, a combination of all three.

It does no good to tell this type she's wrong, unless you can also build up her self-confidence. Why not let your gregariousness carry her along? Take her arm and make her mingle. Direct group conversations her way. Show her you're proud of her: Soon your pride will reflect in others' opinions. Once you get her talking with people she may discover what you already know: Every couple needs apartness as well as togetherness, and too much clinging can suck the life right out of a marriage. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I thought I was "stood up" a couple of weeks ago by a man who asked me out to dinner and then didn't appear. I was mad and hurt, and when he didn't call to apologize, I wrote him a rather sarcastic note which I very much regretted the minute I mailed it.

Today I heard he has been in the hospital following a car accident that happened the day before our date. He'll be laid up another month.

Do I dare go to see him when he's probably still smarting over my letter? — ASHAMED

DEAR ASHAMED:

Why not write this man an explanatory note, then go to see him? A patient who must remain in bed another month isn't likely to hold a grudge against any prospective visitor, especially one who apologizes for an honest mistake. — H.

Got a problem? An adult subject for discussion? You can talk it over in her column if you write to Helen Bottel, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

THE WORKING MOTHER

Children Aren't Deprived By Job

By JEAN CURTIS
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service
(First of two articles)

Are children of working mothers who are continually, no matter how gently, being pushed off the parental lap, natural clingers?

Quite the opposite, I've found.

"I'm a better mother since I started to work than I was before," more than 50 women have told me. In fact, the kind of mothering dished out by women on the go appears to be an impressive quality, the ingredients for which seem universal.

"When you have less time to be with your children, you make the most of that time," many a woman said.

"You have to learn to be efficient with your family and that makes you more conscientious," others said.

A GOOD example of such consideration came from a woman who worked full time as a secretary in New York.

"I got a notice a few weeks ago from my daughter's school that the mothers of the third grade were invited to a tea at 3:30 to meet and talk with the teachers. I was furious — 3:30. Did they think all mothers sat home waiting for the opportunity to put on a hat and join the ladies? But she's my daughter, and I have to work, and you know all the guilt that gets thrust on you over that.

"So I arranged with my boss to leave, and traveled way up town to make the tea. Now listen to this — there were a lot of mothers who didn't come, and a lot of those mothers who didn't come were women who did not work. Now I ask you, where were they, and would I have made the same effort if I were home all day feeling resentful of being a housewife?"

Certainly better mothering and more conscientious attention to the details of being a parent, such as keeping up good communication between schools and parents, is a factor in the well-being of the children.

If a woman is happier when she works, or if a family is more financially solvent because of the mother's salary, the tensions, or at least some of them, may be reduced at home.

Some mothers claim that the self-confidence they have got from their jobs has helped them in overseeing the schooling of their children.

"I WAS timid about going to see a principal or teacher before I worked," one mother told me. "But since I have had to work with adults more on a managerial level, I have felt more rapport or at least some kind of common ground in going into a school office and discussing my children."

Children who have to deal with lots of adults from the time they are very young also seem to gain the confidence needed to cope with teachers, babysitters, guidance counselors, housekeepers or the parents of other children.

"My kids have never had to depend solely on me for guidance. They've had to rely on bus drivers, household help, shopkeepers and traffic patrolmen since they were 5. I think they learned then how to be responsible to other people, and most of all, how to be responsible to themselves," a Cambridge, Mass., mother of eight told me.

Very young children benefit from close association with lots of adults, too. Although we hear a lot of discourse now about leaving a child during the first two years of life, the mothers who have feel their children have not suffered.

"I went back to work when my son was 6 weeks old," a New York editor told me. "The first week was more of a wrench on me than on him, I am sure, but once we made the adjustment, we were both happy.

"NOW HE is almost four and takes the situation for granted. You might say it's because he has never known anything different, and that's partly correct. But he is a very happy little boy and we are very close.

"He welcomes the babysitter every day and looks upon his nursery school teacher as a welcome addition to his adult repertoire. He rarely cries when I have to leave him and almost never when it's early in the morning and I have to get to work."

For the most part, babies and young children who have been exposed to the care of other adults do take the situation for granted and suffer less "separation" problems as the school years approach.

As children get older, fending for themselves in various ways throughout the day gives them the opportunity to feel more grown up in a very practical sense. In this sense "latch key"

PARENT AND CHILD

More Exposure To Music Needed

By CYNTHIA PARSONS
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

What happens in a family if neither parent is musical?

We know what happens in musical families; the children are likely to be musical, too. Not all the children of a concert pianist, for example, are likely to be professional musicians. But certainly all have deep exposure to beautiful music. All should know how to listen with discrimination.

But what happens if a father isn't a concert pianist, in fact when he doesn't even own or enjoy playing any musical instrument? And when the mother also is without music skill or interest, how do the children develop an interest both in hearing and making beautiful music?

In many schools, "music" is a required subject. But this generally consists only of vocal music, and instrumental work is reserved for those whose families can afford private lessons.

And in many large city school districts, the majority of children have "music" once a week under the direction of a teacher who has a standard set of songs which, class after class, year after year, the students practice week after week for one public performance.

THERE MAY be more time for music and perhaps even some listening skills taught in some of the smaller, richer, suburban school districts. But, generally, the publicly supported schools provide very little in the way of good musical instruction.

What about the programs to take every fifth or fourth grader to hear a symphony during the school year? Of course, such a program is commendable. But it bears the stigma of "better than nothing." However, one exposure during the elementary school years is hardly enough to develop music skills.

Such a session may whet an appetite, but how to get to more concerts? How to feel more at home with music by learning to play an instrument or to develop one's voice? How to learn to recognize harmony over discord? How to appreciate what an orchestra is doing when it plays a complex symphony?

Children do have a craving for music. And the commercial interests around the world cater to this need with sound masquerading as music.

Tapes, recordings, radio, television — all cater to "cheap" tastes in music. Why? Because the children who want and need music know no better. For them, the fine tones of a Bach cantata or a Mozart concerto or a Chopin prelude or a string ensemble are "foreign."

BUT THIS need not be. With just a small effort, every school could enlarge its music program. It could use volunteers to help teach and provide concerts and make sure that all the children get a deep exposure to fine instrumental as well as choral music.

Yet one can go to a few schools and find children writing and performing their own musical works. The teachers are excited about upcoming musical events. Children are learning to sing in four-part harmony.

"Teachers in both types of schools are being paid at the same level. The music budgets may be identical. The difference is in execution, and in the pride the community takes in providing good music for those children from homes with modest incomes — too modest to pay for private music lessons.

Even many families that could afford such lessons are devoid of any good music instruction because the parents have other interests. These children, too, deserve to learn how to make and appreciate music. They deserve to have their lives enriched with it.

MUSIC IS for everyone. And we all need to see that it's part of all our lives.

Those with a deep interest in and love of music need to help their local schools and churches develop good music programs. Without such help, thousands of would-be musicians will never have the opportunity.

Ladder Color Code Adopted

The ladder industry has adopted a standard color code and use-and-care labels. This is part of a campaign to help ladder users select the right ladder for the right job. Standard use-and-care labels for metal ladders used around the home include this caution: Don't use around electrical circuits. Read the labels at the hardware store before purchasing ladders. And ask the clerk's assistance when in doubt about whether you're buying the right ladder for the right job.

No ladder, especially the extension type, should be used in high winds.

One talent most of them seem to acquire at an early age is the ability to use the public transportation system on their own.

Most of these kids also know how to cook as well. They can make their own breakfast, pack a school lunch and make simple suppers.

FOR MANY mothers who worry about the perils of children using tools, household appliances and public systems without supervision, it may be comforting to know that children of working mothers on the whole have some rigid rules to follow in order to gain their "freedom."

"When my kids get home from school, they have to phone in if they want to go somewhere that wasn't planned.

"They each have certain duties to perform first at home, and when I get there they must be at home and have all their jobs done. Believe me, that takes up enough time so that I know they are spending it constructively."

Having chores to do at home, a routine they can count on, and the assurance that their mother will follow through with supervision at a distance is about all these kids need to operate comfortably.

It does not hurt, of course, to have a mother and a father who take the time to let the children know they love them and are proud of their accomplishments.

As one mother put it, "When your 3-year-old says, 'I can do it by myself, mommy' — let him and praise him. You'll have it made in no time."

TOMORROW: Mothers and children learn to adjust to nursery school or day care centers.

The workshop will be limited to 15 children, boys and girls.

One Reason For Increase of Dental Cavities

People who have the most dental cavities are often the ones who eat one or two meals a day, snacking between meals, according to the National Institute of Dental Research.

Sweets should be restricted because many bacteria in the mouth use sugar as the raw material to produce acid which dissolves tooth enamel, according to the institute's researchers. Sugar is also used by certain types of bacteria to manufacture a glue like substance which enables them to stick to the tooth in a fine film called plaque.

Little Art Thoms Steals The Show

Big Art Thoms was doing the talking but little Art Thoms was stealing the show Monday night at the annual awards banquet of the Marin City Boys Club.

The big Thoms, defensive tackle for the Oakland Raiders, and Bob Hoskins, who plays the same position for the 49ers, were guests of the Boys Club, and Art brought along his four-year-old son, Art Jr. When little Art tired of the proceedings and complained that he wanted to go home to Mama, his dad put him up on the table, put a large arm around him, and went on with his talk to the Boys Club. With the comfort of Dad's arm, happiness was restored.

"I never saw anything like it," said master of ceremonies Dave Scofield of Larkspur, public address announcer for the 49er home games. "As soon as he put him up on the table he was as happy as can be."

HONORED AS THE boys of the year in Marin City were Gary Randolph, 15, for the 1972 year, and Mike Evans, 17, for 1973.

When Thoms was allowed to say a few words by his son, he reported to the crowd at the Manzanita Center that the old man of the team, George Blanda, will be back for one more year but after that it's anybody's guess. Blanda is 46. He also said that to a man, the Raiders are behind Ken Stabler as No. 1 quarterback. That puts Daryle Lamonica as No. 2 in the players' eyes, as well as the eyes of coach John Madden and the real boss, Al Davis.

Hoskins, stricken with Hodgkins Disease last year, said he's got the illness licked and will be expecting to retain his starting job on the 49ers' defensive line. Asked about the other defensive tackle, Charlie Krueger, Hoskins said he didn't know whether the 37-year-old veteran was going to retire or not. If he did, that job will be up for grabs between Charlie's brother, Rolf, Stan Hindman and Bill Belk.

TO SET THE RECORD STRAIGHT: Last Thursday I did a piece on Irish football and hurling and the sport of curling came up in print five times to only twice for the correct sport. That's one way to find out if you are paying attention.

I was referring to the Irish football and hurling doubleheaders coming up the next two Sundays at Balboa Stadium, being sponsored by the United Irish Societies of San Francisco. The football matches will be between County Cork and an Irish all-star team and the hurling matches between County Limerick and all-star hurlers from Ireland. The Sunday doubleheaders, on March 24 and 31, start at 1 p.m.

And unless the weather changes drastically in the next few days, the sport they will be playing in the second game is hurling. That game is played on a grassy field, players using what looks like hockey sticks to carry and hurl the ball. Curling is played on ice, a game resembling lawn bowling.

But now comes the big difference: Hurling is as traditionally Irish as the shamrock and curling is said to be the invention of Scotland. Now that's a difference!

TWO MEMBERS OF THE Berkeley midgets hockey team (ages 15-16) are from Marin County and will be in the lineup when that team takes on Portland Saturday and Sunday in a two-game series at Berkeley Iceland. The two are goalie John Rotar of Corte Madera and defenseman Russ Dotson of San Rafael. Berkeley, with a 24-0-1 record, has won the Northern California and District 10 (California, Nevada, Arizona, Texas, Hawaii) titles. Portland is representing a district covering Oregon, Washington, Alaska, Utah and Idaho. Why don't the two boys play on a Marin junior hockey team? The midgets are one division not included in the Marin program. Marin's loss was Berkeley's gain.

A's Have Share Of Spring Aches, Pains

MESA, Ariz. (AP) — The world champions of baseball have their share of spring training aches and pains.

Reggie Jackson was listed as a doubtful starter for the Oakland A's today in their exhibition game here against San Diego. The slugging right fielder was struck on the right forearm by a pitch yesterday in an 8-6 loss to the Cleveland Indians.

A's starter Ken Holtzman shut out the Indians for five innings. But reliever Rollie Fingers gave up eight runs in the next two innings.

Former A's players Dave Duncan and George Hendrick had big days for the Indians. Duncan drove in four runs with a home run and double, while Hendrick hit two doubles.

The A's sent 11 players to their minor league camp yesterday.

Newly signed pinch-running specialist Herb Washington was scheduled to join the A's today. He will get special instructions on base running starting Saturday from Maury Wills, who stole a record 104 bases for the Los Angeles Dodgers in 1962.

ROSIE, SHARON WIN AKRON NET MATCHES

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — Marin's two players on the women's professional tennis circuit, Rosie Casals of Sausaltio and Sharon Walsh of San Rafael, won their matches yesterday in the first round of the $50,000 Akron Open.

Miss Casals defeated Betsy Nagelson without losing a game, 6-0, 6-0, while Miss Walsh downed Susan Stap, 6-2, 6-2. Miss Walsh will play Great Britain's Virginia Wade today

A BIG MEET, A BIG MAN AND A SMALL IRON BALL

Redwood High School's 240-pound Darrell Elder, his face alternately showing concentration, strain and curiosity, launched the 12-pound shot yesterday during the Giants' track and field meet at Terra Linda. Elder, who qualified for the state meet in the shot put as a junior last year, yesterday won both the shot put (51-11) and the discus (179-8½), but Terra Linda won the meet between the two evenly matched Marin County Athletic League powers, 69-67. In yesterday's other meet, defending champion San Marin defeated Novato, 83-52. See story, page 27.

Umps Keeping Eyes On Sosa

PHOENIX (AP) — The San Francisco Giants' Elias Sosa, one of the most effective relief pitchers in baseball last season, is being watched closely by umpires in spring training.

Sosa committed two balks yesterday which helped the San Diego Padres score their only runs in an 8-3 Giants exhibition game victory.

"I'm glad they're calling the balks now," said Manager Charlie Fox, who expects Sosa to smooth out his pitching motion before the National League season opens April 5 at Candlestick Park.

The right-handed pitcher broke into the major leagues last year with a 10-4 record in relief. But late in the season, umpires warned him that his jerky motion with runners on base might draw balk calls.

Sosa worked only the eighth inning yesterday. One balk allowed a runner to score from third base.

But some heavy hitting and excellent pitching during the first seven innings had virtually assured the Giants of victory.

Left-hander Ron Bryant, the 24-game winner who was injured last weekend in a swimming pool accident, was not with the team. He went to Davis, Calif., to attend the funeral of a friend.

In a trade announced last night, the Giants sent rookie pitcher Willie Prall to the Chicago Cubs for catcher Ken Rudolph, who probably will back up starter Rader this season.

HIGH SCHOOL BASEBALL

Marin Catholic Extends Win String To Five

The players from Marin Catholic High School are acting as if they want to restore the word "streaking" to its old, time-honored meaning in baseball jargon.

The Wildcats extended their winning streak to five games with a 5-0 victory over visiting Cardinal Newman of Santa Rosa, the only victory achieved by the six Marin teams which played yesterday.

Terra Linda lost to Vallejo at Albert Field, 5-1, San Rafael fell to Napa, 5-4, Drake succumbed to Vintage in Napa, 3-2, Novato lost to Hogan in Vallejo, 9-0, and San Marin yielded to Casa Grande in Petaluma, 3-2.

Marin Catholic (7-1), boasting Marin's best record of the non-league season so far, got a three-hit pitching performance from Jeff Knotts, who struck out eight and did not walk a man.

Jamie Connolly drove in two runs and scored two for the 'Cats. In the first inning, he singled and later scored on an error. In the fourth, he tallied on the front end of a double steal after his single had scored Mike Nivens. Nivens had doubled home the first run of the inning.

San Rafael (3-2) almost pulled its game out of the fire. Trailing 5-0, the Bulldogs scored four times in the top of the sixth before the last two batters struck out with the bases loaded.

Fred Hurst hit a sacrifice fly, Ray Cinti drew a bases-loaded walk, Steve Bowers was hit in the helmet by a pitch with the bases loaded (he was not hurt) and Mike Biglieri hit an RBI single during the rally.

Terra Linda (6-2) scored its only run on a double by Mike DeMattei and a single by Buck McCusker in the fourth.

Drake (3-4) took a 2-1 lead in the fourth on a squeeze play and Doug Rosenberg's run-scoring single, but yielded two runs in the bottom of the sixth to lose.

Novato (1-5) committed seven errors and allowed Hogan 10 hits, three for extra bases.

Jabbar Too Much This Time

Abdul-Jabbar poured in 31 points despite the efforts of George Johnson and Clyde Lee. He and Bob Dandridge, who finished with 30 for the night, combined to raise Milwaukee's game shooting percentage to 58.5 per cent.

"The way Kareem was shooting tonight, no one would have stopped him," Thurmond said afterward. "He was making hooks that didn't even touch the rim. I don't think I could have done much about that," he said.

Milwaukee outscored the Warriors 12-0 in the first few minutes of the fourth quarter, opening their two point margin to a safer 88-74.

WFL Ends Its Meetings With More Rule Changes

NEW YORK (UPI) — A program for latching onto dissatisfied National Football League players and a set of rules providing a change from the NFL — these were the plans drawn up today by the World Football League for its battle in the Pro Pigskin Sun.

The WFL completed its board of directors meeting here yesterday by listing the NFL teams WFL teams will hope to draw from, and by running its list of "new" rules up to 10.

Now the league feels it is nearly set for the opening of its regular season on July 10, a season that calls for no exhibition games but 20 regular season games for each of the 12 teams in the loop leading to championship competition around Thanksgiving Day.

A league spokesman said the WFL already has signed "more than 750" players. The bulk of these, he said, were collegians named in the previously conducted WFL college draft or free agents. The most successful team in signing drafted college players is Southern California, which has signed 22 of its 36 choices.

At the meeting here, the league first conducted a 40-round draft in which the teams named pro players it hopes to sign sometime and a "draft" of NFL teams to establish hunting territory for each team.

Here's how the WFL "picked" NFL teams:

Washington — New England Patriots and Baltimore Colts; Toronto — Green Bay Packers and Detroit Lions; Philadelphia — Los Angeles Rams and Washington Redskins; Portland — Dallas Cowboys and St. Louis Cardinals; Florida — Houston Oilers and Philadelphia Eagles; Detroit — Minnesota Vikings and Buffalo Bills; Birmingham — Atlanta Falcons and Miami Dolphins; Southern Calif. — San Francisco 49ers and Denver Broncos; Chicago — Cincinnati Bengals and Cleveland Browns; Houston — Kansas City Chiefs and New Orleans Saints; Hawaii — San Diego Chargers and Oakland Raiders; and New York — Pittsburgh Steelers and New York Jets.

The board of governors concluded their meeting by adopting four new rules changes and by a long-range discussion of possible expansion in 1975.

The rules changes, that is, variations from NFL rules were: no "fair catch" will be permitted on punts; an offensive back will be permitted to go into motion toward the line of scrimmage before the ball is snapped; the hash marks will be narrowed from the collegiate distance to the NFL distance; and an incomplete pass from a scrimmage line inside the 20-yard line on fourth down will be returned to the line of scrimmage, not to the 20-yard line.

The league spokesman said that the cities under consideration for possible franchises in 1975 are Milwaukee, Mexico City, Indianapolis-Louisville, Puerto Rico, Phoenix, Ariz., Charlotte, N.C., Tokyo, and Seattle.

He said that some of these cities already are represented by groups, but these discussions did not involve appearances by any of the groups.

The league will compete in three divisions, which have been tentatively set up as follows: East — New York, Philadelphia, Toronto, Washington; Central — Birmingham, Florida, Detroit, Chicago; West — Houston, Portland, Southern California, Hawaii.

Trade Comes Back To Haunt Seals

BLOOMINGTIN, Minn. (AP) — A trade completed two years ago by the California Golden Seals came back to haunt them as the Minnesota North Stars triumphed over the National Hockey League West Division cellar dwellers.

Dennis Hextall, traded here by the Seals for Walt McKechnie and Joey Johnston in 1971, collected a club record three assists and scored one goal to help the North Stars to a 6-3 victory last night.

McKechnie did his best for California by scoring two of the club's three goals, giving him 22 for the season and his all-time NHL high. Stan Gilbertson scored the other California goal.

The Selas scored once in each period, but got off only one feeble shot in the second period when Minnesota was down two men for 1:37. In all, the North Stars outshot California 41-28.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Spring Cleaning Is For Boats, Too

Spring, beautiful Spring! The vernal equinox is upon us, and the new boating season will soon be upon us. Now is the time to plan and prepare to get your boat in the best possible condition for summer.

Even those boatment who live in southern areas, where boats may be left in the water all year, must face up to some springtime fitting out chores.

Make a list now of everything that has to be done. What can't be repaired on a do-it-yourself basis should be taken to a dealer early in the year, when the pressure is off.

Work on a boat engine or outboard is usually done better and cheaper before the summer activities begin. I've found late winter to be the most economical time for boat and motor work.

This is a year of cost consciousness in boating. More boatmen than ever are doing as much of their own work as they can. Planning and preparing fitting out activities has its problems as questions we are asked indicate:

Q. My gas tank rusted inside during the winter. Is this bad?

A. It certainly is. You'll never feel confident with such a tank. Shake out any rust flakes and rinse it with gasoline. As long as you are careful not to allow any condensation to form in the tank, this procedure should suffice.

Q. What's the sparkplug gap on outboards?

A. The average is 30 thousandths (.030 inch). This is wider than the gap specified for many automobiles (usually 25 thousands). Plugs with smaller gaps seem to foul more quickly on an outboard motor. But I've never heard a scientific explanation to explain why.

Q. I've got a cover over my battery box. A friend seemed quite alarmed that I had no ventilation holes. Why?

A. Well, it could blow up. A charging battery gives off hydrogen, which is explosive when mixed with air. However, I must admit that in 30 years of dabbling in boats I've never heard of a battery box blowing up. But there'll be a first time, never fear.

Q. My propeller is nicked. Can I file it smooth?

A. Only if the damage is very slight. If you file any amount of metal off one blade, take the same amount off the others or the prop will be out of balance and cause vibration.

Q. Fishing line got caught around my prop last summer. Now there's an oil leak. What gives?

A. The line worked into the oil seal around the prop shaft. You'll have to replace the seal. Next time you see line around the prop, get it off pronto.

Q. I've got five gallons of outboard fuel mixed from last summer. Is it still O.K.?

A. It's great . . . to gum up your motor. I know it hurts to throw away a couple of dollars, but stale fuel often forms gum that may plug your carburetor.

Q. The hose from my tank to the outboard motor has turned hard. Why?

A. Rubber experts tell me it's age. And the aging can be speeded up by sunlight, or some solvents. In any case, don't take a chance, get a new one and take better care of it.

Q. I started my outboard out of water (I didn't know any better). It got hot and squealed. How bad is it?

A. Who wouldn't squeal with that kind of treatment? Most outboards are water cooled. But maybe it isn't too bad. It's when the squealing stops that you have to worry. The pump impeller may be burned out.

Q. My remote controls are stiff to move after the winter inactivity. Any advice?

A. You'll have to lubricate thoroughly. Take the cover off the control box, repack the inside with grease. Maybe you'll have to soak parts in light oil. Next year, have a more thorough winterizing program.

Purdue To NIT Semi-Finals

NEW YORK (UPI) — Fred Schaus, whose Purdue team advanced along with Jacksonville to the semi-final round of the National Invitation basketball tournament, has been with the men in the pros and right now he'd like to say a word for the "kids" in the colleges.

"Some people talk about the kids of today," said Schaus after Purdue scored a revenge 85-72 victory over Hawaii in the NIT quarter-finals last night to qualify for a Saturday clash with Jacksonville, 85-83 winner over Maryland-Eastern Shore.

"But I say 'baloney' to criticism of the kids," Schaus continued. "They do have goals. They do know where they want to go. I loved the 12 years I was with the Los Angeles Lakers but right now I've got the most perfect job in America. I love being with the kids."

Schaus became coach at Purdue after a long stint as the successful coach and general manager of the Lakers of the National Basketball Association, thus returning to the college ranks where he long ago first won national attention with a West Virginia team that featured a young Jerry West.

Purdue finished third in the Big Ten this season and, after two wins in an NIT that has seen the early favorites quickly shunted to the sidelines, the Boilermakers now rate about as strong a favorite for the title as there is in the evenly-matched field.

In beating Hawaii, Purdue avenged a 76-67 loss to Hawaii in the finals of the Rainbow Classic back in December in Hawaii. Schaus noted two differences in the two games — Purdue's defense and the location of the game.

"We are playing defense much better now than we were at that point in the season," the Purdue coached said.

Purdue moved out to a 46-33 halftime lead and Hawaii never really menaced after that although the Rainbows' Tom Henderson took game scoring honors with 33 points, his career high. Six-foot-six Frank Kendrick led Purdue with 22.

Purdue came out of the game with one worry, starter Jerry Nichols who crashed heavily on one knee and was taken to a hospital for treatment.

A crowd of 12,234 at Madison Square Garden saw a tremendous battle in the first game of yesterday's twin bill as George Scholz sank two free throws 26 seconds before the end for Jacksonville's winning margin over Maryland-Eastern Shore.

Lakers' Counts Unhappy

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Mel Counts has become so frustrated on the bench in this season of Laker frustration that he may ask coach Bill Sharman to trade him.

The 7-foot tall forward-center, an active reserve last year, has averaged only six minutes playing time in 78 games.

"I think I'll ask to be traded," the former Oregon State star said. "I'm very unhappy, very dissatisfied."

Last season, Counts came off the bench as the first forward replacement for Jim McMillian or Bill Bridges to replace injured Happy Hairston and sparked the Lakers in their drive to the Pacific Division title and a playoff berth.

"Not playing has been an insult to me—not only as a professional but as a man," the 10-year veteran said in an interview yesterday.

"Why should I have to prove myself again when I played quite a bit the final two or three months of last season and did a job?"

Now the Lakers must sweep their last four games—including tonight's Forum encounter with Milwaukee—to stay in contention with the Golden State Warriors.

"I was going with Mel the first half of the season as the first substitute at forward and center," Sharman said.

"But his shooting was down to about 34 or 35 per cent, which it is now," he said. "He was getting into foul trouble and I don't know the reason but he just wasn't playing as well as he had in the past."

Casa Grande Nine Wins On Home Run

Jeff Westfall hit a home run in the bottom of the sixth inning yesterday to give Casa Grande High School a 3-2 non-league baseball victory over visiting San Marin.

In other Southern Sonoma non-league diamond action yesterday, St. Vincent was edged by host Clear Lake, 2-1, in eight innings and Rancho Cotate dropped a 1-0 game to Montgomery in Santa Rosa. Tomales blanked host Marin Academy, 5-0.

Casa Grande (2-2) got a good pitching effort from Mike Zaccagna and Glenn Alexander, who limited San Marin (3-3) to four hits. Two of the Mustang hits were doubles by Bruce Smith and George Saunders.

Tomales (2-1) also had fine pitching, with Ken Kehoe and Sam Marsi combining for 15 strikeouts and no walks against Marin Academy. Marsi fanned seven in a three-inning relief stint.

The Braves capitalized on six walks and two errors for their runs. The big blow was a two-run double by Dave Camp in the sixth inning.

St. Vincent (2-4) fell victim to the balk rule, as Clear Lake scored its winning run in the bottom of the eighth on a two-out balk by Mustang hurler Pete Leoni.

Rancho Cotate (0-3) could manage just one hit off Montgomery's Jeff Vendehi, a fourth-inning single by Tony Crisafulli. The Vikings' only run was unearned.

Terra Linda, San Marin Win League Track Meets

Few track and field teams around can be found as equal in ability as the ones from Terra Linda and Redwood High schools.

Host Terra Linda Trojans beat the Redwood Giants, 69-67, yesterday in the Marin County Athletic League dual meet season opener for both teams. A week and a half ago, Redwood edged the Trojans, 48-47, for first place in the MCAL relays.

In another league meet yesterday, San Marin opened defense of its title by dropping cross-town rival Novato, 83-52, on the loser's track.

Steve Johnson led the way for the Trojans, sweeping the sprints (100-yard dash, 220 and 440) and anchoring the winning mile relay. Darrell Elder won the shot put and discus for Redwood.

Elder's discus heave was the longest ever made by a Marin high school athlete. The previous best was 176-1 by San Rafael's Ron Snidow, later a professional football player, in 1959.

Novato and San Marin exchanged double winners, with Mustang Dave Harder taking the 120 and 330 yard hurdles, and Hornet George Cagle winning the 880 and 440.

Jim Perry Joins Brother Gaylord On Indians' Staff

Combined AP & UPI

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. — Former Cy Young winner Jim Perry was united with his younger brother, Gaylord, for the first time in his professional baseball career yesterday.

The Detroit Tigers traded Jim to Cleveland as part of a five-player, three-way deal in which Indian outfielder Walt Williams went to the New York Yankees and Yankee catcher, Jerry Moses went to the Tigers.

Along with Williams, the Yankees got rookie righthander Rich Sawyer from the Indians and then optioned him to Syracuse of the International League. Detroit completed the swap by optioning righthanded reliever Ed Farmer to Syracuse.

Key figure in the deal was the 37-year-old Jim Perry, a former Indian who was named the American League's Outstanding Pitcher in 1970 after winning 24 games for Minnesota. Brother Gaylord, 35, also was voted the Cy Young Award for the Indians in 1972.

Traded to the Tigers by the Twins last March, Jim Perry won 14 and lost 13 in 1973.

Public Defender Wanders Rather Far Afield

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY
28 SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 20, 1974 EDITORIAL PAGE

Little known to most Marinites is the county public defender's office, which has 19 positions and a budget for the current fiscal year of $395,365.

A very unusual activity by that office last week brought it very much to the attention of about 70 families in the county.

Under date of March 12 and over signature of Deputy Public Defender Larry L. Heon, a letter and questionnaire went out to all those whose names were on the panel for the 1973 county grand jury, whether or not they were selected to serve.

THE QUESTIONNAIRE asked how long the person had resided in Marin, then asked him to check whether in the last three years he "actually lived in Marin County" less than 25 per cent, less than 50 per cent, 100 per cent, or "other" time.

It called for a job description, racial background, number of persons in household, "scholastic achievements and other education," gross income in 1972 and '73, current net worth, principal language spoken in the person's home, by his parents, and by spouse's parents, source of grand jury nomination and, if that were an organization, its goals and membership makeup and whether it "excludes any ethnic or religious groups."

There were more questions — 32 in all. But that gives you an idea.

THE ACCOMPANYING letter said this was "part of an investigation into grand jury selection methods. Your responses to these questions will be used as a part of a statistical survey in support of motions in pending criminal cases." It then warned that if the questionnaire were not completed and returned within five days, the person might be subpoenaed.

The pending criminal cases, according to Public Defender Harold J. Truett, are two cases involving San Quentin prisoners defended by his office. The inmates hope to have the grand jury indictments thrown out on the basis that the 1973 grand jury was not representative of a cross-section of Marin's population.

THE PUBLIC defender's office was created to give legal representation for indigent persons charged with crimes so they would be assured fair trials. It does a good job. Undoubtedly it is an improvement over the old days when a judge would appoint some attorney present in the courtroom to represent an accused person who could not hire his own lawyer.

But the makeup of the grand jury has nothing whatever to do with defending an accused person in court or assuring him a fair trial. If a grand jury indictment is thrown out on a technicality, that does not free the accused nor in any manner establish his innocence.

The public defender's office seems to have overlooked that fact.

PERHAPS THE 19 persons and the $395,365 budget are too many and too much. Perhaps the public defender's staff has to go outside its proper purposes to keep busy.

In 1969-70, there were only nine positions in the office. The budget was $167,808.

ERNEST B. FURGURSON

War Is Unfair, Never Kind — Even To Gen. Westmoreland

WASHINGTON — Stephen Crane wrote that war is kind, but he was being cynical. War is unfair. Some young men get the GI Bill out of it, and out of that a profession. Some lose a leg or an eye.

All at once, some familiar names and cases came back from our most depressing war, the one we have tried to put out of mind, to bury in what has happened since.

Lt. William Calley was tentatively released by the court from house arrest at Fort Benning, Ga., where he has been confined almost three years since his conviction for his role in the My Lai massacre. For him, the spoils of war are bitter.

Bitter, too, for the draft dodgers whose case is pleaded before a House subcommittee considering amnesty legislation. So also for the latest hero portrayed in Rolling Stone — a pot-smoking soldier whose memoirs tell of drifting back and forth from friendly to enemy forces in Cambodia and Vietnam. Bitter, for them all.

Now Gen. William C. Westmoreland confirms publicly what he made clear to me nearly three weeks ago when I began the southern leg of this long nationwide outing. He is running for governor of South Carolina as a Republican.

WESTMORELAND has a good chance of being elected governor, but he could never convince me that would be the pinnacle of his ambitions. There was a time, barely seven years ago, when the thought of becoming president passed through his mind. Not that he came right out and said so, but the subject was brought up. It was in the air when he came back from Saigon and addressed a joint session of Congress in 1967. But that was before Tet and before the 1968 election. After what happened, he fell back on his lifelong ambition to be chief of staff of the U.S. Army.

Even that was not so sweet as his dreams had seen it. He brooded over the idea that the war he fought had ruined the Army to which he was devoted. He wanted desperately to justify what he had done in Vietnam and what he had predicted, and he had a good case. But nobody wanted to listen.

When his four-year term as chief of staff was up, he was eminently available for some other high appointment. But Mr. Nixon was not eager to risk a percentage point by honoring an unpopular hero. He offered him the Immigration Service. Westmoreland refused. He would have accepted the Veterans Administration, for he felt he owed something to the men who had fought under him. But that was not offered.

So he went home to South Carolina and, now, a week from his 60th birthday, he is running for governor as a Republican. But not a Nixon Republican. Asked whether he would like the president to come down to campaign for him, he said with restraint, "I would not make such a request."

I WILL GUARANTEE that the war has weighed as long and heavily on Westmoreland's conscience as on that of any draft dodger in Toronto, any deserter in the stockade, even that of William Calley, who was convicted of wholesale murder of helpless civilians.

Yet today the draft dodgers are getting a respectful hearing at the capitol. Some politicians who did not support them when they fled are conceding now that conditional amnesty, under which the exiles would have to do some form of service to their country, has become reasonable. And Calley still has his fans, who see him as victim rather than villain.

In parts of the country, the one among all these who would rank lowest on a popularity poll this year is the general who once was mentioned vaguely for the White House, the only one among them who never broke the law. No, regardless of how the election comes out in South Carolina, there is no way to argue that this war was kind, even to him.

SACRAMENTO SCENE

A Lot Of Little Guys Run For Governor, Too

By RUS WALTON

Take a look at the list of those who have filed for statewide office. Not the has-beens. Not Jesse Unruh who wants back in the trough as state treasurer. I mean the common folk who are the real repository of common sense in this republic.

Thirty-one run for governor. Check the names, you may never hear some of them again:

Russ Priebe, Santa Monica; Eileen Anderson, Beverly Hills; Josephum S. Ramos, a warehouseman from Richmond; Joseph Francis Brouilette, a teacher from Citrus Heights; Glenn D. Mitchel, El Cajon; Edmon V. Kaiser, a chiropractor in Fremont — and on and on, and George Henry Wagner.

TAKE THAT GEORGE WAGNER. A construction truck driver from Lancaster; 47 and eight kids, and he runs for governor. He runs as an independent Democrat because, he says, the Democratic party "has run out of long-range goals." He wants to impress it with some of his ideas; barring that, he thinks he bears the seeds for a future Common Sense party.

Wagner says he wants to introduce a new (or old) concept in government: "Give the politicians enough so that government is sufficiently strong to protect and defend. Then, if they want more money to finance their expenditures that we don't really need, they should have to earn it."

He has some good ideas. He suggests, for example, that homeowners who improve their property be rewarded with a one per cent tax deduction for every five per cent they increase the property's value.

And "to stop the spread of the slums, and to repair the damage already done, let's penalize — with higher taxes — those owners who play deterioration against depreciation, deliberately allowing abnormal decay."

He would also require school children to study the basics of common law in the early grades so that they could not later plead ignorance as an excuse for misdemeanors and felonies.

He calls himself a "misfit politician" because he is part of no machine and has no establishment behind him. No big-wigs rake in the coin for him, no council of the mighty meets to plot his strategy or read him public polls.

"Today they wiped the windshield. Is that a good sign?"

Council Seems Determined To Handicap Business

I don't know how they do it but they must lie awake at nights cooking up some schemes of how to make a hardship on the merchants and practically forcing them to close their doors and many are doing just that. What with the ordinance of moving the signs plus the many taxes and license tax increase imposed on them, it is a wonder that they survive.

The sign removal was not a brilliant idea. The next step they probably will put into effect is an ordinance of what and how much merchandise you should display, color, coordination, etc.

Signs are beautiful — they are the only way a merchant has to be identified. They give life to the business district. The merchants have spent a great deal for their signs —it now costs them to remove them plus getting new signs to meet the standard requirements. It is easy to make up rules and regulations when you don't have your money invested in business. . .

Think of some ideas to help the merchants stay in business. Remember your salaries are paid for by the merchants' and homeowners' taxes — so don't bite the hand that is feeding you.

San Anselmo Police Demonstrate Compassion

On Thursday afternoon my son was cut badly on the face and hand and became extremely upset at the mention of the emergency hospital and the sight of gushing blood. Being home alone and having to face a trip to Marin General with a bleeding and crying child, I placed a call to the San Anselmo Police Department asking for assistance. Within minutes Chief Buchignani and an officer arrived at my home to take us to the hospital. Chief Buchignani carried my son into the waiting room and told me to call them when I needed a ride home.

I would personally like to thank Chief Buchignani and the officers who assisted us. I think that the City of San Anselmo is extremely lucky to have such a dedicated police force. Not many police forces would take the time or the personal interest in a 3-year-old boy. Many thanks.

THE PEOPLE'S SCHOOLS

Not All School Districts Conform To State's 'Profiles'

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

The California State Department of Education, in preparing its statewide testing program reports, works out "profiles" of the school districts based on sociological and economic factors. The idea is that these make it possible to predict how pupils should do on the tests.

Sometimes the "profile" predictions work out; sometimes they don't.

Included in the material fed into a computer to produce the "profiles" is such information as median teacher salary, tax rate, assessed valuation per pupil, poverty index, amount spent on cost of instruction, percentage of minority race pupils, and — of course, the children's "IQ" scores.

This year, in preparing its report on the 1972 and 1973 state testing programs, the department added some information drawn from the 1970 federal census: per cent of population Spanish-speaking, per cent college educated, and median income. This additional information was supposed to make the "profiles" more accurate.

For instance, Hillsborough Elementary School District in San Mateo County has the highest median income of any in the state ($20,873), is in the top one per cent in median teacher salary and college education of parents, and in the top 10 per cent in expenditure per pupil. It is in the bottom 10 per cent in poverty index and per cent Spanish-speaking. And its sixth grade pupils scored in the top one per cent on three of four tests last year and the top two per cent on the fourth.

Then there is Palo Alto Unified District in Santa Clara County, whose 12th graders ranked in the top three per cent on all four state tests — and the top one per cent on one of them. It is in the top one per cent in median teacher salary and spending per pupil, the top three per cent in college education, the top seven per cent in median income, and the bottom 13 per cent in poverty index. It fails to fit the formula only in that 30 per cent of its population speak Spanish, according to the census.

There are several other such districts, where a high-income, well-educated populace invests heavily in its schools, pays top salaries — and gets top performance from its well-endowed children.

BUT NOT ALL districts fit the "profiles" so well.

There is, for instance, Taft High School District in Kern County, with median teacher salary within the top one per cent in the state. Yet its 12th grade pupils were unable to score up to the state median on any of the statewide tests.

And there is Emery Unified District in Alameda County, which spent $1,791 per pupil on costs of instruction — the very highest except for a few oil-rich one-room and two-room Kern County elementary schools. Yet Emery High School 12th graders scored in the bottom 10 per cent, statewide, on all four tests.

Then there is Del Mar Elementary School District in San Diego County, ranking in the top one per cent in college education of its populace. Del Mar district's sixth graders barely managed to break into the top 20 per cent in language and were below that on the other three tests — certainly not bad, but not nearly so good as many districts with a less-educated populace.

AND TO SPOIL the whole "profile," there is McCabe Elementary School District in Imperial County. McCabe's median teacher salary was $10,950, just a few points above the state median. It spent $513 per pupil on costs of instruction, which put it in the bottom 19 per cent statewide. Only 3.62 per cent of its population were college educated, far below the state average. And the median income of its adult males was $5,722, in the bottom 12 per cent statewide.

To top it all off, according to the census figures, 90 per cent of the people in McCabe district speak Spanish — a great handicap in teaching the children, according to educators. Yet McCabe's sixth graders were in the top nine per cent in reading, the top 12 per cent in language, the top eight per cent in spelling, and the top 10 per cent in mathematics.

Maybe there is a factor that should be included in the "profiles" but is impossible to measure and feed into a computer: the ability and dedication of the teachers.

CAPITOL QUIPS

By PHIL DESSAUER

If some of our public officials are putting their best foot forward, the other one certainly should be kept out of sight.

Nixon won't be discouraged until he hears his supporters chanting "Three More Years" as a question instead of a shout.

People in the mass-mailing business are selective. They don't believe in sending mail to just anybody . . . if that makes Occupants feel any more important.

The streaking fad is bound to fade. It can't take cold weather, and in warmer temperatures it will inevitably adjourn to the beaches.

ROSCOE DRUMMOND

Accomplishments In Mideast Weigh Against Impeachment

WASHINGTON — There has been another Nixon "bombshell" — and this time it has exploded in the ranks of the opposition.

It works this way:

QUITE A FEW members of Congress believe that Richard Nixon should be impeached on the grounds that he has badly misused the presidency to the great harm of the nation.

That is an honest contention, but when such a broad indictment is advanced to justify removal from office, then the other side of the argument will rightly be weighed very carefully; namely, that Mr. Nixon has well used the presidency for the great benefit of the nation.

This is the point at which the president's climactic achievements in the Middle East — furthering the peace of the world and ending the Arab oil embargo — become pertinent and, to many, persuasive to the end that the services of the President to the nation considerably outweigh his disservices to the nation.

WITHOUT DESERTING its commitment to the safety of Israel as a sovereign state, the United States has become an ally of both the Arabs and the Israelis in the interest of a mutually just and secure peace. This process began the day after Mr. Nixon was elected and has been carried out with brilliant skill — and success.

Perhaps most significantly, it has shielded the whole Arab world from being dominated by the Soviet Union, and today the Russians find themselves second to the United States among Arab leaders and Arab peoples.

Without the good offices of the United States, there would be no Egyptian-Israeli disengagement along the Suez Canal.

Without the good offices of the United States, a Syrian-Israeli disengagement would not be within reach as it is today.

Without the good offices of the United States, there would be no Arab-Israeli negotiations looking toward a permanent settlement. Such negotiations will start soon in Geneva.

THE REASON these remarkable, almost implausible, achievements have been attained is that the United States has demonstrated that it can be an honest broker between the Arabs and the Israelis in the cause of bringing an end to their recurring wars.

By proving ourselves a trustworthy ally of both, we have acquired great influence with both.

Today the United States is the only nation which can talk with and is trusted by both sides. The United States is the only nation which can exert influence on both sides to promote an acceptable compromise.

These are achievements over and beyond all expectation. They are the distinctive achievements of the Nixon-Kissinger conduct of American foreign policy.

And these do not exhaust what has happened. Egypt and the United States have restored diplomatic relations. President Anwar Sadat has drawn close to the United States by using his ascending influence to end the oil embargo. He has emerged stronger than ever throughout the Arab world, and has become the very model for other Arabs who want to end the wasteful Arab-Israeli conflict. The United States has helped moderate Arab leaders to acquire the dominant voice.

If a fourth or a fifth or a sixth Arab-Israeli war is to be averted, now is the moment when a sensible settlement can be won and the United States is the nation which has the influence and the trust to bring it about.

It is within reach. It is attainable because of the way Mr. Nixon has used the presidency to the great benefit of the nation and the boon of all mankind.

WILL ROGERS SAYS . . .

"You see, the hard thing in this British strike from an American standpoint is to look at an Englishman and judge from the way he is working whether he is on strike or not. There is not an American that wouldn't say England is on strike. But they wouldn't be at all; it would only be tea time.

"There is only five million out this strike, but at tea time there is 51,683,423 on strike. You see, that is why it is so hard to excite people that are used to that much leisure every day, anyway, whether there is a strike or not.

THE MIND I LIVE IN

By ROB TREICHLER

"A small girl's mind functions differently. That I know for a fact. Our kindergarten age girl-child announced as solemn fact recently, "When I was a little girl in my mommy's tummy I thought only Spanish people could do handwriting."

I dropped the project I was involved in (licking stamps for envelopes, I think) because I was more than mildly interested in what she knew, prenatally, about the handwriting proclivities of Spanish people. But in the finite period it took me to get interested in the subject, she'd flitted, butterfly-like, to another flower of information in the vast garden of wonder that is the mind of the average 5-year-old.

WITH A MIND that functions like this, it is truly a wonder that there is any communication between parent and child at all.

Think of it! This sentence, quite well put together, even by adult standards of English, is totally mind-boggling in the implication of its logic.

If an acquaintance mentioned casually, "When I was a boy of fifteen, I thought red cars were best," no one would have any difficulty in understanding the thoughts he wished to convey. That they cared little for this boring bit of nostalgia makes little difference here.

The similarly phrased but logic-destroying statement from a 5-year-old raises, in one sentence, questions as to the retentive facilities of the very young mind, the enigma of when life really begins, and the wisdom of teaching a child the facts of life at an early age, and just what it is that the very young know about the writing habits of Spanish people. And why?

AND WHILE I QUESTIONED further about this mind-boggling statement, "Just what do you think about handwriting now? When did you discover that other people could do handwriting?" Kimberly was explaining the use of symbols and color in her most recent kindergarten painting. After a short but effective one-sentence discussion on the use of purple suns in orange landscapes, we went on to the importance of pretty hairbows when walking home from school. They keep bad black dogs away.

The rationale and pace of her logic, and her self-assurance as she laid one fact on top of another, completely destroyed my afternoon.

If only I could get the kid to explain to me the mysteries of Washington, the oil crisis or when the inflationary spiral will flatten!

Women Guards Do Well In Prisons

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Forty-four women have become guards in California prisons and reportedly have experienced little difficulty with their new jobs, except for some problems with handling firearms and male inmates blowing them kisses.

Philip D. Guthrie, spokesman for the state Corrections Department, said 55 slots have been opened for female correctional officers in an experiment to see whether women can hold prison jobs, and 44 women thus far have begun service.

"Obviously we are not going to assign women to our hottest unit where we keep the toughest guys," Guthrie said.

"However, there are some of our old line officers now who will at least entertain the idea that a woman might have a calming influence. That's not something we are proposing to experiment very soon with, however," he added.

At San Quentin, where five women are working as guards, William D. Nyberg, prison information officer, said "there are always going to be male correction officers who don't think there ought to be female officers."

However, he said, outside of grumbling by some of their male counterparts, there have been no problems with women working as correctional officers.

Carol Dahlberg, a Vacaville Medical Facility guard, said one problem she encountered recently was when a prisoner began blowing kisses at her from behind his barred window of a nearby cellblock.

"They're being men, honest-to-God men, and I can understand," she said. "I was a female for 31 years before I got to be a CO (correctional officer)."

Miss Dahlberg coped with the inmate by calling the officer in charge of his wing and telling him to remind the prisoner he was dealing with a state correctional officer, if you please.

The experiment with female guards has met strong negative reaction from the Sierra Conservation Center, where three women are employed.

The comment by prison officials: "... they have failed consistently and repeatedly to qualify on firearms so that we have been unable to utilize them on tower assignments ... the evaluation is unfavorable."

L.N. Patterson, superintendent of Deuel Vocational Institute which has four female guards, reported: "Our women COs have demonstrated that they can perform their restricted assignments without creating any problems and have conducted themselves in an exemplary manner."

When Correction Department Director Ray Procunier announced last summer the prison system would begin experimenting with female officers, many male guards expressed outrage.

"The emotional impact was tremendous," said Corrections Personnel Officer George C. Jackson. "Corrections has historically been a male-oriented kind of operation."

But now that the men are somewhat used to the idea, said Officer Betty Brown "I think they've reacted very well. Many, many of the officers had a real concern for our safety. And there was the concern too that they would have to lay their lives on the line, as they put it, to protect us.

"Some feared the jobs we would take are the easy jobs, the plush jobs.

"But the majority, particularly the younger officers, says they're going to keep an open mind," she said.

One concern expressed by male officers, Jackson said, was that the privacy of male inmates might be jeopardized.

But Guthrie said, "We're not putting women in any situation where women will see naked men."

People Believe We're In Slump

NEW YORK (UPI) — "By 68 to 22 per cent, a sizable majority of the American people now believes the country is in a recession," the Harris Survey has reported.

That feeling is up sharply from the 54-32 per cent recorded by Harris in January and is the highest ever noted by the Harris Survey in this decade.

Harris said that 91 per cent of the people asked say that prices they pay are rising faster than a year ago, "and they complain particularly about sharply escalating prices of gasoline, food and staples."

Pupil Drop Costs Ross School Funds

Because of a decline in enrollment, the Ross School District will have approximately $1,000 less to spend next school year, district trustees learned last night.

And it will have even less money unless it levies the maximum tax rate allowed in the district, according to Supt. Thomas A. Anderson.

The district's tax rate this year is $2.45 and its revenue totals $677,000, he said. But next year it will take a tax rate of $2.57 per $100 assessed valuation — the maximum rate — to yield revenues of $676,000, $1,000 less than the current year's revenue.

Under Senate Bill 90 the district will get less money as its enrollment drops and Ross is expected to lose approximately 7 pupils in 1974-75, the superintendent said. "We expect to have 485 students next year, compared to 492 this year," Anderson explained.

In other business the school board accepted the resignation of teacher Barbara Gaffney who had been on maternity leave and agreed to pay 15 cents per mile to employees using their cars for district business. The current rate is 12 cents.

The moon is approaching its new phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Jupiter. The evening stars are Mars and Saturn.

Norwegian poet and dramatist Henrik Ibsen was born March 20, 1828.

Also on this day in history:

A thought for the day: Norwegian writer Henrik Ibsen said: "The spirit of truth and the spirit of freedom . . . they are the pillars of society."

Help Must Be Sought When Trouble Erupts On Finesses

"If you behave yourself and eat up all your spinach," my mother used to tell me, "all your finesses will work." I must have left some spinach on a plate somewhere or other, because my finesses sometimes lose. This is no cause for despair; there are ways of getting along even when the cards are badly placed.

Opening lead — ♣ 3

West opened the three of clubs, and South finessed with dummy's ten. East returned a heart, and South played low as a finesse. West won with the queen of hearts and led a club to dummy's king. Declarer drew two rounds of trumps and then went after every finesse in sight.

His first step was to lead a diamond to the king and return a diamond for a finesse with the jack. West won with the queen of diamonds and got out safely with a diamond. Now heart finesse, and he was down one when this lost.

Declarer was on the right track when he ducked the first round of hearts and later drew two rounds of trumps. But then he should leave the hearts and diamonds alone.

The correct play is to lead the jack of clubs from the South hand. West must play the queen, since the first trick locates that card in his hand. Declarer does not ruff this card in dummy; instead, he discards a small diamond from dummy.

NEEDS REST

Now South needs the rest of the tricks, and he will surely get them. If West returns a heart or a diamond, he gives declarer a free finesse, and if West returns a club, dummy discards a heart while South ruffs.

Supervisors Back Firing Of Scientist

The board's review of the firing was requested by Valu, who was dismissed from the county laboratory last September on a series of charges, including incompetency and inefficiency.

The county personnel upheld the firing on a unanimous vote prior to the appeal to the board of supervisors.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors also:

CONFLICT — Adopted an addition to the county code requiring that all county elective officers, and a list of more than 150 appointive officials subject to new state laws must disclose any conflict of interest between official duties and other activities they may be engaged in. County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney reported that the state income disclosure law for elected officials has been changed to omit listing of specific clients for lawyers and the like, which had met strong objections on many levels.

COUNTRY MUSIC — Approved leasing the Marin Veterans Memorial Building and county fairgrounds to Jewell Enterprises to stage a "Golden State Country-Blue Grass Festival" expected to draw about 5,000 persons each day, April 21 through 28. No rock music will be permitted, building Mgr. Leon G. Kalimos told the board.

HEARINGS — Set public hearings for 2:30 p.m. Tuesday on rezoning and master plan readoption for the Sugarman property in Strawberry, and 3 p.m. Tuesday for rezoning of the Northridge area.

WILDLIFE — Endorsed a proposal that buildings the Army will give up at the Nike missile base on Fort Cronkhite be turned over to a wildlife rehabilitation program headed by Lloyd B. Smally of the Louise A. Boyd Marin Museum of Science and by Paul Maxwell, zoologist in charge of the new Gerbode Preserve wildlife area for the Marin County schools department.

ELECTIONS — Approved resolutions consolidating tax rate or trustee elections in the Tamalpais High School District, Shoreline Unified, San Anselmo and Fairfax School districts with the June 4 primary election. Also put on the June 4 ballot a Novato Fire District proposal to raise the district property tax maximum rate from 71 cents to $1.28 per $100 assessed valuation, and measures requested by the City of San Rafael.

DRAINAGE — Awarded a $229,674 contract for drainage improvements at the Scott Valley Bypass in the Mill Valley area to Maggiora and Ghilotti of San Rafael, lowest of six bidders.

AUTISTIC — Approved a new $24,600 program for helping and training autistic children and their parents, with the county's cost to be $2,460 and the rest coming from state Short-Doyle funds that can be spent only on new mental health programs.

JUVENILE HALL — Received without comment or action, a report from the Marin Juvenile Justice Commission urging that use of paraprofessional counselor aides in the hall be limited. The supervisors will consider the report at the same time as a larger study on overall Juvenile Hall problems, due April 1 from the commission.

NICASIO SQUARE — Postponed to April 16 a public hearing on formation of an underground utility district for Nicasio Square after residents said they needed more information on costs.

PARADISE VALLEY — Accepted for public hearing an environmental impact report on the controversial Paradise Valley Commune near Bolinas and postponed to April 16 further discussion of the farming commune.

SHELLMAKER — Received an analysis of the environmental impact report on the proposed Shellmaker marina-light industrial park project in Sonoma County near Black Point. The county has submitted a list of concerns to Sonoma about the report.

LAND DIVISION — Denied an appeal by Robert Clark of the planning commission's decision not to approve a land division for his 5.4-acre on Richardson Way near Dawn Lane in Tamalpais Valley.

HORSE APPEAL — Upheld the appeal of Sanford White of 5 Ridge Lane near Mill Valley for a use permit to keep a horse on his property. Neighbors protested to no avail. The planning commission had voted 3-to-2 for approval but four votes were needed.

STRAWBERRY — Overturned a planning commission decision granting a zero frontyard setback to Gordon Smith for one of the six parcels at 429 East Strawberry Drive. The board said the home should be set back 10 feet.

'MY FAIR LADY' TO OPEN

They are members of the cast of "My Fair Lady," the musical comedy, which will be staged by Novato High School students. Zoning Density Reduced Near Nicasio Reservoir

Property owners and county supervisors thrashed out a compromise rezoning yesterday to reduce the number of possible homesites on some 2,000 acres adjacent to the Nicasio Reservoir.

The board's action, approved on a 3-to-2 vote, places A-40 zoning on the bulk of the land, allowing one home for every 40 acres, and A-30 on the rest, allowing one home for every 30 acres.

The net result was a reduction to 47 homesites from the previously approved 58. The county planning department and commission had recommended zoning to permit only 31 homesites.

Property owners complained that the land was rezoned only 14 months ago during the county's mass rezoning of agricultural lands and that it was unfair to rezone them again so soon.

Harvey E. Bragdon, chief of current planning, countered that since that time the county had adopted its general plan listing the lands for lower density use.

That position was taken by Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste in casting his negative vote to the compromise, while Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere urged no change in zoning in casting his.

The compromise, worked out by Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini, splits the difference in the number of homesites. He said he would have gone along with the planning department recommendation except that the properties had only recently been rezoned.

He added that if the county hadn't granted A-10 zoning to the Foster and Big Rock ranches earlier this year, he would agree with the planning department's position.

Area residents, headed by John Kelly of the Nicasio Property Owners Association, supported the planning department's recommendation for lower density zoning.

In a related action, the board deferred a decision on rezoning the 38-acre Pugmire parcel on Nicasio Valley Road pending the completion of the San Geronimo Valley community plan.

Board Backs Phone Plan

The Marin County Board of Supervisors yesterday approved construction of a new telephone company equipment station in San Geronimo to help improve poor phone service to the area.

The building, to be located on a 1.5 acre parcel on San Geronimo Valley Drive, drew protests from several neighbors who argued it would destroy a picturesque meadow adjacent to San Geronimo Creek.

Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini, in urging approval of the new building, said a meeting with 200 area residents last week showed most in support.

Billions Are Said Lost To Economy

MANHATTAN, Kan. (UPI) — Economist Walter Heller estimated yesterday that the Arab oil embargo caused an estimated $15 to $20 billion to disappear from the U. S. economy.

Heller, here for lecture at Kansas State University said the money probably was absorbed by the major multinational oil companies. He said he did not expect this profit to reappear in the economy.

ART REVIEW

Exposure To Indians Influenced Artist

By ADA GARFINKEL

The past decade has witnessed the emergence of many new art forms and directions as artists respond to internal and external impulses and stimuli.

One artist who has found greater atunement and fulfillment in turning to primitive and natural sources is painter-sculptor, Cornelia Schulz, whose works are currently on display at Lester Gallery in Inverness.

Miss Schulz received both her bachelor's and master's degrees from the San Francisco Art Institute and is presently an art instructor at the University of California at Davis.

Several events occurred which energized the artist's inner impulse toward a new direction. To wit: seeing the art work of Indians of the American Southwest and spending time on a Hopi Reservation; identifying with their mythology and culture; her own developing identification with primitive forces in nature; a severe injury and protracted recovery. And her own special need to include her experiences and feelings overtly as a statement of her own immediate presence in her work.

Miss Schulz' craft and materials are a composite of both old and new. Her paintings — unstretched and unframed — simulate doeskin. Actually they are of rubber latex or fabric dipped in vinyl-latex paint, stiffening as they dry, and becoming more sculptural. She uses Indian cloud and flight symbols and features (real and painted) — rather than earth symbols — with large areas simply stained in rainbow hues which bleed gently into one another.

Most of the paintings are simply pinned to the wall. One is suspended from a rope looped over two nails. The rope continues tautly to the floor where it is seen to be anchored to two stones — one on either side — daubed with white paint.

Miss Schulz' standing, wall-leaning sculptures, carved and whittled from smoothly sanded saplings, are ritualistic and ceremonial totemic poles. They mark events, occasions, celebrations, and ward off evil spirits.

The sculptures are incised, scored, augmented with knotted insets and hand-dipped silken fringe. Some are tightly bound with cloth tape over layers of knotted rope which are allowed to emerge at various points, with still others having dowel-like pegs near the top end. Several are colorfully enameled.

This exhibit will continue through April 12 and may be viewed Wednesday through Sunday from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. The Lester Gallery is on Sir Francis Drake in Inverness.

'Madwoman' Scheduled By Students

Mad ladies will make their appearance on the Tomales High School stage Friday at 8 p.m., for the opening night of "Madwoman of Chaillot." Twenty-five members of the senior class will participate in the two-act comedy by Jean Giraudoux.

Sharon Parks represents evil in the role of the president, and the other mad ladies are Kathy Tremari, Chris Lunny, and Kris Sanford. Leonard Simas plays Pierre. Other members of the cast include Laura Sexton, Elke Reinhardt, Linda Richardson, Margery Rossi, Vivien Straus, Gayleen Vieira, Linda Thornton, Margaret Mazzucchi, Janet Williamsen, Cheryl O'Banion, Irene Pozzi, Karl Miller, Jonelle Mantua, Lauri Poiani, Susan Furlong, Brian Horick, Rick Borello, Pat Joyce, and Norman Duncan.

"Madwoman" will be repeated Saturday and again March 29 and 30. The play is produced and directed by the Tomales High School English department, Kathryn Lawson, Patrick Woodworth, and Susan Sattler. Good News From Capital Helps Boost Stock Prices

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices moved upward on the New York Stock Exchange today on the basis of optimistic reports from the nation's capital.

Brokers noted that the government reported its first-ever surplus in the balance of payments in 1973. Another favorable development in Washington was the government's announcement that personal income had risen in February following a decline in January.

American Telephone warrants led the most active stocks with a turnover of 112,800 shares at 4, unchanged. CNA Financial Corp. was second most active, off ⅝ at 9⅞.

Emerson Electric, the early leader, was third at 41¼, unchanged. Other active stocks were Madison Fund, up ⅛ at 10⅞ and Phillips Petroleum, off 1½ at 52.

Atlantic Richfield was the only gainer among the oil issues, picking up a fraction. In the generally higher auto group, General Motors, Ford and Chrysler posted fractional gains while White Motors was off ¼.

Prices were mixed in slow trading on the American Stock Exchange.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Wean United Looks Better

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Several years ago I bought 125 shares of Wean United (NYSE) directly from the company at $24. It stopped paying dividends long ago. Will it ever get back up or should I unload it? — K.B.

A. These shares were first offered publicly in 1966 at $24, a price which has not been seen since. Earnings, which had deteriorated annually, reached a nadir in 1970 when a $1.33-a-share deficit was reported. Although losses have continued each year since 1970, the extent of the deficit has been reduced. A turnaround in sales in the final 1973 quarter lifted bottom line results out of the red to 48 cents a share for that period, although for the year a 19-cents-a-share loss was reported.

Orders have been strong, reflecting a higher level of capital spending in certain industries. Thus, at the year end Wean's order backlog at $303 million was up 115 per cent year to year. Contributing significantly to the upsurge in new business were contracts from foreign steelmakers. In fact, well over half Wean's sales are made to overseas companies.

While the steel industry (domestic and foreign) accounts for more than 60 per cent of Wean's business, their equipment is also sold to nonferrous metal fabricators, rubber, plastic and plywood companies. The outlook appears far more encouraging now than it has for several years. Hold.

Q. I have 395 shares of Standard Oil of California (NYSE) which had a 2-for-1 split last year. Is that good or bad? — C.D.

A. A stock split is neither good nor bad. Your position as a stockholder remains virtually unchanged; you now own twice as many shares worth half as much each. If anything, a split should be viewed as a positive, in that the lower price range at which the shares are trading may attract new investors, thus broadening ownership of these shares.

INCOME TAX FACTS

By PETER J. WIKEL, C.P.A.

Secondary Business Or Hobby Have Strict Deduction Clauses

If you have a hobby business or part-time business in addition to your primary job and this secondary business does not produce a profit, you may not be able to deduct the loss.

The rules governing activities not engaged in for profit come into play if your part-time business does not produce a profit.

You can only claim the deductions which would be allowed to an individual whether he was in business or not. This is real estate taxes, interest, etc. You cannot deduct depreciation, etc., except to the extent of the gross income in excess of taxes, interest, etc., which would be deductible anyway.

You can deduct your expenses to the extent of your income so that you have no taxable profit, but you cannot deduct your expenses to the extent that you would have a loss that would be deductible from other income.

There is, however, a presumption in the rules that if there was a profit received from your business for two or more of the taxable years in the last five consecutive years, or in the case of breeding, showing or racing horses in the last seven years, then you would be presumed to be in a business for profit and you would be able to deduct your losses.

Also, you can elect to wait until the close of the fourth or the seventh year as the case may be before the determination is made as to whether or not you are in an activity now engaged in for profit.

Taxable years beginning before Jan. 1, 1970, do not count in making this determination. If you decide to delay a determination until the end of the fourth or seventh year, then you would probably have to sign a waiver of the Statute of Limitations in order to make this election, so that IRS would be able to recapture the tax allowed because of the loss from your hobby business if you did not qualify.

La Femme Fatale Dress Shop Opens New San Anselmo Store

La Femme Fatale is the provocative name of a new dress shop which opened at 556 San Anselmo Avenue in San Anselmo. The shop is located across the street from Kaufman's men store, where the Golden Hind Book Shop closed last month.

Partners in La Femme Fatale are Sandi Brigham and Diana Corbett, both of Sleepy Hollow, who feature better clothes for women, including sportswear, dressy dresses, some jewelry and some antiques. The dress shop also carries small sizes. The store is open Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Mrs. Brigham has been in the travel business for the past three years and was an airline stewardess for four years before that.

ANTHONY W. AIRES of Terra Linda has been named director of marketing for Seatrain Lines' Guam-Micronesia service.

Aires joined Seatrain in 1970 when the company began container service between the West Coast and Guam. He had been district marketing manager of the company's Guam service and will continue to be headquartered in Oakland.

Aires

Dutkin

CHARLES H. DUTKIN of Mill Valley was promoted to manager of the estate and financial planning department of United California Bank's trust department in San Francisco. He will be responsible for selling personal trust services and for administering other trust activities.

Dutkin has a law degree from the University of Virginia and is admitted to the practice of law in California. He has been with United California Bank since 1970.

JIM'S BARBER SHOP is the new name for the former Herschel's Barber Shop at 809 Fourth Street in San Rafael, next to the Royal Frankfurter.

Jim Lassle of Novato, who has been barbering in Marin County for 15 years, took over the shop from Herschel Pifer of San Rafael, who left for West Virginia after operating the shop for about three years.

Jim's Barber Shop is open for haircuts and hairstyling for men, women, and children from Tuesday through Saturday, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. weekdays and 9 to 5 on Saturdays. Lassle said he plans to take customers by appointment on Thursdays and possibly Wednesdays.

Lassle ran the College Barber Shop in Kentfield from 1964 until last year, and was a barber in Larkspur for five years before that.

JOHN S. CAPLE of San Rafael joined Avoset Food Corp. of Oakland as brand marketing director. He was formerly new business development director for Dymo Industries.

In his new position, Caple will direct the introduction of trademarked products, including "Second Nature," Avoset's new cholesterol-free egg substitute. Capel is a graduate of Stanford University and has a master's degree in business administration from Harvard Business School.

Collins

ROBERT G. COLLINS, sales manager at the McNear Company Inc. in San Rafael, was installed as president of the Northern California Concrete Masonry Association for 1974.

Collins, who lives in Santa Rosa, has been with McNear Co., Inc., manufacturer of concrete blocks, for three and one-half years.

RON BERMAN of Kentfield has been appointed creative director of Honig-Cooper & Harrington, San Francisco.

Berman joined the firm in 1958 and has been in the creative department for 14 years, the last six years as associate director.

WOMACK'S FABRICS in Novato, owned by realtor J. Wayne Womack, will be sold to his brother, Eugene J. Womack, who has been managing the store for the past five years. There will be no change at the store, except for the legal transfer by the first of next month.

Wayne Womack first opened a variety store in Novato in 1957, converted it in 1964 to a toy shop on Grant Avenue, which he sold in 1966. He opened Womack's Fabrics at Tresch Triangle in 1965.

BANKERS LIFE Insurance Co. of Iowa has an office at 404 Ignacio Boulevard (Pacheco Plaza) in Ignacio, with an eight-man staff headed by Robert Lampert, unit manager. There has been no change in this office or its staff.

Confusion arose because of the relocation of another office of Bankers Life in Northgate Industrial Park earlier this month. Charles J. Root Jr., agent of Bankers Life of Iowa, moved his office from 119 Paul Drive to the La Plaza building, 4340 Redwood Highway, all within Northgate Industrial Park. Root's office is completely separate from the Bankers Life office at Pacheco Plaza.

JOE M. FLAKE & Co., which creates and sells its own travel programs to organizations, has opened in suite 552 in the Holiday Plaza building at 1050 Northgate Drive, Terra Linda.

The company arranges tours to Hawaii, Mexico, Spain and Portugal, the Orient, and South Pacific. "All departures are guaranteed and prices are below those of scheduled airlines," said Flake. "Each organization gets a comprehensive manual documenting all details of the tour from how many drinks on the airplane to hours at the beauty salon in the hotel."

SUE HAERLE Public Relations firm has officially opened at 27 Sulgrave Lane in San Rafael.

It is headed by Sue Haerle, former wife of Paul Haerle, vice chairman of the Republican State Central Committee and former appointments secretary for Governor Reagan.

Mrs. Haerle, who has been in Marin since 1955, did public relations work for the Marin Shakespeare Festival for about a year and community relations work for the volunteer Bureau of Marin. She is aided by Donna Dodson of San Rafael, who has about five years of experience in public relations, advertising, and decorating.

NORTHBAY SAVINGS and Loan Association of Petaluma will open a branch in Healdsburg, corner of Healdsburg Avenue and North Street, this spring. This will be the first branch office for Northbay Savings, founded in 1965.

PORTLAND (BW) — Directors of Pacific Power & Light Co. has authorized an April 10 payment of a quarterly dividend of 40 cents per share on the common stock to shareholders of record at the close of business March 25.

REST PERIOD — Rep. Jerome R. Waldie, whose campaign for the Democratic nomination for governor features walks throughout the state, pauses at a closed service station in San Rafael to chat with youngsters from a Kentfield school. The candidate yesterday said the children's questions about Watergate, pollution and the energy shortage were similar to concerns he hears from adults.

Schoolboys Question A Candidate

By MARY LEYDECKER

California's walking gubernatorial hopeful, Rep. Jerome R. Waldie, D-14th Dist., paused briefly yesterday on a hurried trek through Marin to answer questions posed by a group of schoolboys.

Waldie had planned a more extensive walk through Marin, but he stopped only briefly in San Rafael before driving back to Novato to resume his hike toward San Francisco. He explained he was taking a night plane to Washington, and postponing plans for more walking in California this week.

As he drove up to the corner of Fourth and Lincoln streets in San Rafael, Waldie was greeted by a group of about a dozen boys, fourth three sixth graders from Bacich School in Kentfield.

Waldie told the boys, members of an "enrichment" class studying the gubernatorial election, he would talk to them for a few minutes. The youngsters indicated disappointment there would be no walk through San Rafael.

The congressman led them to an out-of-business service station, sat down by a closed pump and answered questions.

"Yes, I think the president ought to be impeached," he told the first questioner.

A small cry of "yea" greeted his answer.

The candidate then looked around at the closed station, currently being used as headquarters for another political candidate.

He told the youngsters that "I think the big oil companies brought this about," indicating service stations are closing because of pressure from the companies.

He said, in his view, that oil companies have created a gasoline shortage in order "to get high prices" and "to prevent environmental controls."

The liberal Democrat went on to describe his competition in the gubernatorial race as "all pretty good fellas," but said he thought his experience in the federal government made him most qualified.

Then he quipped, "I don't have as much money (as the others running for the nomination for governor), but I have stronger legs."

Waldie told the youngsters, "walking around the state, you really notice pollution." He said that on his walk from Vallejo yesterday he saw a band of "ugly brown smog" on the horizon, noticed what seemed to be oil on the Bay waters and saw a lot of garbage dumped out of cars along the roadside.

"I would get pretty tough" on offenders, Waldie said, adding as a noisy motorbike drove by, "I'd also do something about noise pollution."

On his way back to a waiting car, Waldie told the Independent-Journal that the youngsters' questions "were pretty similar" to those asked him by adults during his touring around the state.

The energy crisis, Watergate and pollution are on the minds of adults, too, Waldie said, along with inflation. But in various areas of the state there are also special concerns.

Voters in the San Joaquin Valley ask lots of questions about farm workers, Waldie said, for example, and in San Diego, the coastal commission is much discussed.

In his walking tours of the state, the candidate said he has met at least 10,000 people, many of which he would not have seen at the typical party rally.

He said his favorite was an "old-timer" in San Diego, who attributed his long life to never having touched a politician nor having allowed one to touch him. The elderly man flatly refused to shake hands, Waldie said.

He added that the Marin youngsters yesterday were polite but that many adults throughout the state indicate "a distaste for politics and politicians" in the wake of Watergate.

Finally, Waldie said, while his walking tours have been a success in meeting many voters, "I haven't lost much weight."

Patting his stomach, he grinned and explained, "I get so thirsty that I drink a lot of beer."

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

Measure Easing Pot Penalties Moves On

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Assemblyman Alan Sieroty's bill to reduce first-offense marijuana possession penalties has moved to the Assembly floor.

Similar legislation authored by the Beverly Hills Democrat has failed.

The present bill provides that a first conviction on possession of four ounces or less of marijuana shall be a misdemeanor punishable by no more than six months in county jail and a $500 fine.

Present law permits courts to prosecute such cases as misdemeanors or felonies, with possible state prison terms on conviction of a felony.

Physicians, architects, barbers and real estate salesmen would be affected by the proposal (AB1774) sponsored by Assemblyman Julian Dixon, D-Los Angeles.

The bill adds discrimination on the basis of race, color, sex, religion, ancestry or national origin to the list of violations under which disciplinary action could be taken.

Candle Ban

Petris said yesterday that research by Ralph Nader's health research group showed that such candles emitted higher concentrations of lead fumes than federal standards allow for factories.

Lead poisoning can cause illnesses as serious as brain damage, and is especially dangerous for pregnant women, he said.

FARM WORKERS

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Farm workers would have the right to secret ballot union representation election under a bill introduced yesterday in the legislature.

Sen. Clare Berryhill, R-Ceres, sponsored the bill (SB1887) that would set up an agricultural labor relations board to administer the proposed collective bargaining law.

Similar bills, opposed by the Farm Workers Union, have failed to clear committee.

Bus Service To Richmond Is Approved

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The Public Utilities Commission yesterday approved an application by a private bus company to operate between San Rafael and Richmond.

Traveler's Transit Co. of San Rafael was given four months to start the service. The route includes San Quentin Prison and the Richmond terminal of the Bay Area Rapid Transit system and the Standard Oil of California complex.

The company will operate two 12-passenger buses. Fares will be 50 cents from San Rafael to the prison and $1 to Richmond. Ten round trips will be run daily, four in the morning, two in the afternoon and four in the evening.

The application was opposed by the Metropolitan Transportation Commission, which said studies are under way by the Golden Gate Bridge and Alameda-Contra Costa Transit districts to provide the service. Under federal law, both districts would have to buy out the private company if they replace its service.

The last operator of bus service between the two cities went out of business almost three years ago. Partners in the new venture are David McGreevy of San Rafael and Kem Yim Louie of San Francisco.

Mary Tyler Moore Is Woman Of Year

Miss Moore, star of the CBS television series "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," was cited for opening a new dimension of television situation comedy.

Reappointed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — C. L. Dellums, one of the original members of the State Commission on Fair Employment Practices, has been reappointed to another three-year term by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Novato Panel Is Challenging Disposal Policy

The Novato Environmental Quality Committee has challenged the Novato Sanitary District's waste disposal ordinance, which prohibits recycling groups from collecting cardboard.

Committee members Monday night sent a memorandum to the Novato city council charging the ordinance is "discriminatory and should be amended."

Under the provisions of the ordinance, Novato Disposal Co. has the exclusive right to collect refuse, which includes rags, paper, bottles, lawn trimmings, packing material, pasteboard boxes, straw, sawdust, bottles, cans and crockery.

The committee said the district's definition of refuse is "all inclusive" and if taken literally, the city itself might be in violation.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Cancer Increases The Chances Of Contracting Other Diseases

A person with an incurable cancer may live for months or years. The skillful use of chemotherapy, radiation, and surgery not only controls distress, but prolongs life. However, the malignancy does not make the sufferer immune to other diseases and infections. In fact, something other than the cancer may finally take his life.

The low resistance of cancer victims usually increases the risk or severity of infections caused by ordinary bacteria, common fungi, parasites, or viruses.

THESE INDIVIDUALS often lack their quota of antibodies and other blood defense mechanisms. For example, the low number of white blood cells may be due to the extensive use of anticancer drugs. Lack of blood platelets encourages hemorrhages under the skin and into the tissues. Physicians sometimes wonder whether the complications attending these heroic measures are worthwhile.

It is not always easy to determine whether a fever signals the onset of an infection in the cancer victim. The cancer also may be responsible for the fever. For example, up to 50 per cent of the victims of leukemia, multiple myeloma, and Hodgkin's disease have fevers that are not associated with infection. Solid tumors are less likely to induce fever, except when the lesion is severe or of long duration. And, let us not forget, that cancers can get infected.

THE MOST common infections usually involve the mouth and throat, lungs, gastrointestinal tract, pelvic organs, urinary system, and the skin. Since unusual microbes, including yeast organisms, may be involved, it is important to determine the causative agent to pit the right antibiotic against the invader. Surgical drainage is needed in some cases.

The best approach to this problem is that of prevention via time-honored methods of hygiene. Cleanliness heads the list for victims of cancer. Scrupulous dental, finger, and toenail care is critical. It is important also to avoid contact with victims of tuberculosis, contagious diseases, herpes, and infected animals, pigeons, and pet turtles, etc. Also recommended are vaccines and prophylactic antibiotics.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer medical questions by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902. Telephone inquiries will not be answered.

FEARFUL, SUSPICIOUS

N. F. writes: If a neurotic person is afraid of people in general, is this the same as being suspicious of people? Would this fear lead eventually to suspiciousness?

REPLY

The two are closely related, for fear often stems from suspicion and vice versa. The psychotic is tortured by suspicions and fears. The individual you write about ought to consider seeing a psychiatrist for an accurate diagnosis of his condition.

MILK AND STERILITY

A reader writes: My 21-year-old nephew drinks two to three glasses of milk at each meal. Our neighbor says a man who drinks this much milk will never be able to have a family Could milk make a man sterile.?

REPLY

No, but it might make him anemic, because milk lacks iron. There is no connection between drinking milk and sterility.

NERVES AND PSORIASIS

A reader writes: The psoriasis on my brother's hands now is appearing on his back and arms. His dermatologist has treated the condition but there is no improvement. Could nerves be a factor?

REPLY

The cause of psoriasis is not known. The condition could be disturbing and make the individual nervous, but nervousness per se is not the cause. An improvement should occur this summer, because the sun has a beneficial effect on psoriasis.

STUBBORN STAPH

P. D. writes: Do antibiotics eradicate staph germs?

REPLY

Many staphylococci respond to the antibiotics, but some varieties are resistant to these drugs. Of all bacteria, staph germs are notorious for outwitting penicillin and other antibiotics.

PANCREAS DISORDER

R. E. writes: Is pancreatitis due to a germ?

REPLY

Possibly, but inflammation of this abdominal organ usually stems from mechanical or chemical causes. It frequently is associated with disease of the gallbladder because the pancreatic juices and bile enter the intestine through a common duct.

DON'T GULP

R. V. writes: How can the habit of air swallowing while eating be overcome?

REPLY

Eat more slowly and don't talk or gulp food when swallowing. Meanwhile, send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on air swallowing.

Housing Starts Up In February

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Housing starts rose in February for the second consecutive month, according to the Commerce Department, and federal housing officials said yesterday they now believe the worst of the building slump is over.

The department said starts increased by 22 per cent in February to an annual rate of 1.8 million units. Construction of single family homes rose by an even more impressive 30 per cent.

Officials said this indicated the housing decline had "bottomed out." That would be good news for the administration, which contends the current business decline will be mild and relatively brief.

Gift To Onoda

TOKYO (AP) — Japanese cabinet ministers agreed yesterday to present one million yen — $3,508 — as a gift to World War II soldier Lt. Hiroo Onoda, who returned to Japan from the Philippines last week after hiding 30 years in the jungle.

Copyright Issue Still Not Settled

WASHINGTON (AP) — Should cable-TV operators pay broadcasters and others copyright fees for TV shows the operators pick off the air? It's a question that's been kicking around in Congress since 1971.

It's still there today, despite a Supreme Court decision this month that cable-TV companies don't have to pay such fees for TV shows they import from distant cities and provide subscribers in their own communities for a monthly charge.

The ruling was viewed in the cable-TV industry as a major victory. And you'd think the major industry group — the National Cable Television Association NCTA — would be more than happy to let the ruling answer the copyright question for good.

But NCTA president David Foster says otherwise. On the day the ruling came, he allowed himself a brief cheer, then insisted his group still wants Congress to make cable-TV operators pay copyright fees, even though it'll cost them hundreds of thousand of dollars annually. "We have always felt that as a matter of qualifying cable to become a first-class member of the communications fraternity, we should accept this responsibility," says Foster, whose group represents 1,300 of the nation's 3,000 cable-TV systems.

"This has been a difficult position for the cable industry to come to," he noted. "There are still many cable operators who don't feel they should pay copyright fees."

However, he added, "quite candidly, a whole lot of our regulatory problems, I think, will either go away or be minimized once we've got the copyright issue behind us."

In 1971, the National Association of Broadcasters, NCTA and copyright owners came to an agreement — sponsored by the White House Office of Telecommunications Policy — to jointly support legislation that would, among other things, make cable-TV liable for copyright fees.

"We still feel that's the way to do it," said NAB president Vincent Wasilewski, referring to the three-way effort.

But Wasilewski, whose group represents 531 commercial TV stations, was skeptical about how hard Foster's association would press Congress for copyright legislation in the wake of the Supreme Court ruling.

But he conceded the NAB's pursuit of the legislation wouldn't be all that vigorous, either, because "this would not be our top-priority legislation." The big push, he said, is for pending legislation to increase the number of years a broadcast license can be held.

The cable-TV legislation — contained in an omnibus bill to update the nation's 65-year-old copyright law — currently is being considered by a Senate Judiciary subcommittee chaired by Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark.

Osteopaths Register A Victory In Court

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A bitter six-year legal battle ended yesterday when the California Supreme Court struck down a 1962 law which prohibited the state from licensing graduates of osteopathic colleges as physicians and surgeons.

The unanimous decision in favor of eight graduates of out of state osteopathic schools said that the law violates the equal protection provisions of both state and federal constitutions.

"There is no rational relationship between the protection of the public health and the exclusion from licensure of all medical practitioners who have received their training in an osteopathic rather than an allopathic medical college and hold D.O. rather than M.D. degrees," said the court.

The eight doctors had been admitted to practice in other states or were practicing in federal enclaves in California as members of the armed forces.

Open Spacers

The Citizens Committee for Strawberry Open Space, a group working for passage in June of an open space bond election in the Strawberry Recreation District, will meet tomorrow at 8 p.m. at the home of Betty Doss, 309 East Strawberry Drive, according to district manager Gayle Hunter.

Standard Will Open On Sunday

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Standard Oil Co. of California said today that its 235 company operated stations in the state will be open on Sundays in response to Gov. Ronald Reagan's plea.

The company said the stations would be open beginning this Sunday. The move affects about 30 stations in the San Francisco Bay area and about 90 in the Los Angeles Basin.

Gov. Reagan has asked that stations remain open on Sundays to ease the gasoline shortage and shorten long gasoline lines.

Wallace Holds Major Answer

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Alfred Baker Lewis, touring the south in his role as treasurer emeritus of the NAACP, says only Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace can say whether he's had a change of heart on the race issue.

Lewis, noting that Wallace won his first term as governor in 1962 with the support of the Ku Klux Klan, said, "He may have changed his mind.

"Whether he has changed his mind or is merely trying to change his image, no one but he really knows," Lewis said.

Freight Boost

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Western Railroad Traffic Association said yesterday the nation's rail carriers will file for a 2.8 per cent surcharge on freight traffic in some parts of the country, effective April 1.

GOP Hopeful For Senate Cites Needs

By FRANK FARRARA

Dr. Earl W. Brian, candidate for the Republican nomination for the U.S. Senate, carrying his campaign to Marin, said yesterday political crime and political terrorism blamed on a too permissive society.

Speaking at a Novato Republican Women's Club luncheon, Brian said, "We've allowed a climate where people can grab others, burn and bomb for their own political gain."

He cited "soft-upbringing, soft parole, soft judges and even softer laws," as contributing factors to crime. "Judges have removed the deterrent of fear."

Even more discouraging, he said, "is that when crimes are committed, people aren't going to prison." He referred to a study that showed of 1,399 persons convicted of armed robbery, "only 513 went to prison. The rest were back on the streets on probation, doing what they were doing before."

Brian, formerly state Secretary of Health Education and Welfare, described himself as "an indignant citizen" advocating a "straightforward approach" to problems.

He listed the major problems as "economy, energy and ethics," and said the average man is losing the personal battle of inflation.

Brian criticized the "consumer advocates" who seek to "form our own judgement when we're perfectly capable of making decisions ourselves."

He spoke against environmental measures that harm the economy and said banning of inseeticides in some instances resulted in crop failures, reduced supply and consequently higher prices.

Some of Brians' comments on other topics were:

Defense — "I am disturbed at people who are anti-defense," and those who want to withdraw troops from foreign countries and "would rather use the funds for social programs, "which are nowhere near protecting the American way of life as defense."

Energy Shortage — To meet immediate needs, he urged opening of the Elk's Hill supply near Bakersfield, and then for changing laws to favor more extraction of coal and long range study toward nuclear, solar and other forms of energy.

Brian resigned his state post under Gov. Ronald Reagan's to seek the GOP nomination for the Senate seat now held by Democrat Alan Cranston, who is a candidate for reelection.

He stressed success of new regulations in reducing California's welfare costs as evidence of his ability to reduce costs through effective legislation and administration.

Brian is a physician, a graduate of Duke University medical school in his native North Carolina. He served two years in Vietnam in the Army Medical Corps, being awarded the Silver Star, Bronze Star, and Air Medal with "V" for valor.

In January 1970, following his return from Vietnam, Brian was appointed by Reagan to directorship of the Department of Health Care Services, administering the Medi-Cal program. He was then 27 years old — the youngest department director in California's history, accoridng to his campaign organization.

Last year, he was recipient of a California Jaycee award as one of the five outstanding young men of the year. In January of this year he was named by the United States Jaycees as one of the nation's 10 outstanding young men.

The Hobby Tree To Aid In Forming Magic Unit

Milo Illich, president of Hobby Tree, Inc., in the Corte Madera Shopping Center, has announced that in cooperation with Society of American Magicians, the store will assist in forming and provide a meeting room for persons interested in magic.

The Society of American Magicians was started in 1902. Past National Presidents included Harry Houdini, Howard Thurston, Theo Hordeen, Nate Leipzig, Cordini, Harlan Turbell and Milbourne Christopher, who is the author of the current magic best seller The History of Magic.

The purpose of SAM is to unite those associated in magic, not only professionals, but amatures, manufacturers, collectors, hobbists, and people who are just interested in magic.

Since 1902 more than 10,000 members have worn the SAM insignia.

Essentially the society is a social organization based on fellowship brought together on an equal basis by sharing an equal love for the conjuring art. It promotes the exchange of information and ideas, keeps membership abreast of new developments, and provides an opportunity for persons to perform in front of fellow magicians and improve their techniques.

Membership is open to any one 17 years of age or older, any associate junior memberships are open to persons between the ages of 14 and 17.

Illich said that as soon as enough senior active members join, the first project will be to establish a young magicians club for those under the age of 14.

The official monthly magazine of the society is called "M-U-M" from the motto "Magic-Unity-Might". Each month the magazine carries articles as well as plans and instructions on new or revised tricks.

Also the SAM Hall of Fame is located in Hollywood where the Houdini Hospital Benefit fund has been set up.

At least seven members are needed to charter a Marin assembly, according to Mr. Illich.

Once the assembly charter is approved, officers will be elected from the charter members, who will then be responsible for the functioning of the organization, he added.

Any one interested in joining can contact any staff member of the Hobby Tree or write the store, 43 Corte Madera Center, Corte Madera, 94939, for an application form. The store will process the charter.

Devotees Of Dirigibles Talking Of Comeback

By DAVID F. SALISBURY
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) has announced plans to do a study of the dirigible. Because these craft do not rely on wings for lift, they could carry passengers and cargo almost as efficiently as the train.

The Organization of American States (OAS) — with its eyes on the mineral-rich but remote jungle areas of South America — is asking U.S. aerospace firms about the chances of using airships.

Recent reports coming from Russia claim the Soviets have decided to develop a nuclear-powered dirigible. For years a group of determined Russian advocates have been pushing the idea as a way to open up Siberia.

Often described as one of the most awesome of man's creations, the lighter-than-air ships enjoyed a brief span of popularity earlier in the century.

Diesels, nonpolluting steam engines, or a nuclear reactor could provide the power to push these sausage-shaped craft at 100 miles per hour. To be economical, the new airships would have to be seven times the size of the old Hindenburg — as much as a mile long and able to carry a million cargo pounds — says Gordon Vaeth of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

Dr. Francis Morse of Boston University has a 980-foot design which he calculates is the smallest airship that could support a nuclear engine.

Morse has calculated that his airship would burn a small fraction (1/7 to 1/14) of the fuel consumed by a jumbo jet per pound of cargo.

Even the airship's staunchest defenders cannot picture a fleet of more than several hundred. There simply is not enough helium. However, the manufacturers of bulky, 100-ton vessels for nuclear reactors would use one for carting their product to inland sites. And a fresh-fruit shipper in Arizona can visualize airship-freighting tons of fruit and vegetables overseas or to the East Coast.

Weather could pose another serious problem for a dirigible fleet. Although modern weather forecasting and powerful engines may minimize weather effects, still the large size of the airship makes it a target for strong winds, Morse said.

Picasso Prices Rising Rapidly

BREMEN, Germany (UPI) — In the year since Pablo Picasso's death, the Spanish painter's works have experienced a "spectacular increase in value," according to Michael Hertz, West Germany's best-known Picasso dealer.

Even Picasso's prints are rising in price, with the best of the work of his last years costing as much as $19,400 each, Hertz reported.

"Picasso has become too expensive for many museums and private collectors," Hertz said. "And I can see no slackening of the price in sight."

Hertz said he is convinced Picasso left more finished works than are generally believed, but added he has no idea when these will be placed on the market.

Survey Shows Pork Consumption Down

CHICAGO (UPI) — The amount of beef consumed by the average American increased by 68 per cent during the 20-year period ending in 1970, but the amount of pork he consumed declined.

According to statistics from the American Meat Institute, per capita annual consumption of beef was 50 pounds in 1950 and 84 pounds in 1970. Pork consumption fell from 64.4 pounds in 1950 to 61.8 pounds in 1971.

EGGERY GAINING

Decoupage Top Easter Craft

Although the art of eggery is gaining ground, decoupage is still the most popular craft for Easter, according to Mike Illich, president of Hobby Tree, Northern California's largest family arts, crafts and hobby store.

"Several people stop by the Hobby Tree everyday to find out how to do a decoupage project for Easter," said Illich. "When they ask, I usually suggest that beginners start with one of the simplified decoupage techniques, although we carry all kinds of decoupage products. The simplified technique requires a plaque, purse, or box, print or prints, wood stain or paint, decoupage glue/lacquer and a brush.

"It's really quite simple and beginners can usually turn out an excellent finished product in a period of about two to three hours time involving some 15 minutes of actual work.

"What we emphasize for beginners is to use the simplest, least expensive method to produce the result. Then, when they have proven to themselves how easy and satisfying it is, there are literally hundreds of projects they can advance to if they choose to do so. "For the advanced projects we have all the needed supplies," said Illich, "and we also carry over three dozen paperback and hardbound books on decoupage. We have learned that our customers learn faster and easier from a well-designed book than from formal class instruction and at a fraction of the cost of the instructional method."

Decoupage is the process of gluing a print onto a surface and lacquering over the print and surface to create an effect. Here is a simple 10-step decoupage method that even children can do:

1. Find a print or picture from a card or whatever you are interested in and spray it with a 'print sealer.'

2. Find a finished plaque or cut a pine board to the exact picture size.

3. Sand lightly using a very fine sandpaper.

4. Stain or paint the plaque (a tube of acrylic paint — burnt umber — thinned with water makes a excellent, fast, inexpensive stain) and let it dry.

5. Using one of the all-in-one decoupage solutions, coat the stained board. The solution will go on milky looking and dry in about 20 minutes. You can tell when it is dry because it dries clear.

6. Using the same decoupage solution as a glue, coat the back of the print and apply it to the board, smoothing out the picture either with a brayer or a business card. Let it dry for one hour.

7. Then coat the entire print and plaque with 2 more coats of decoupage solution allowing for drying between coats and after the second coat.

8. If you want to "antique" the print, use a thinned solution of the same burnt umber acrylic paint you used to stain the plaque. Using a soft cloth or paper towel wipe some of the paint across the front of the print and immediately wipe most of the paint off again. Let it dry.

9. Give your entire print and plaque a final coat of decoupage solution and let it dry over night.

10. Spray with an acrylic spray to set.

Substitute For Platinum Eyed

STANFORD (UPI) — The possibility of an inexpensive substitute for rare and costly platinum in oil refining, chemical processing and perhaps in catalytic mufflers is being explored at Stanford University.

Tungsten, which combined with carbon to form tungsten carbide, acquires platinum-like properties, according to research by Prof. Michel Boudart and his chemical engineering staff.

Another metal compound, molybdenum carbide, also has possibilities, they reported.

First Postal Car Built In Missouri

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (UPI) — The first postal car in the history of the United States was constructed in the Hannibal and St. Joseph railroad shops.

The cars were built after Postmaster Gen. Montgomery Blair ordered the separation, distribution and bagging over the overland mail be performed on the railroad on July 7, 1862.

Truckers Explain Left Turn Move

MICHIGAN CITY, Inc. (AP) — Professional truck drivers suggest the following to ease the frustration and danger of left turns in heavy traffic, according to Clark Equipment Trailer Division.

Claim Is Made To 'Catfish Capital'

BROOKFIELD, Mo. (UPI) — This Linn County community claims to be the "Channel Catfish Capital" of the state because of a unique fishing project.

More than 4,000 yearling channel cats were put in the Brookfield Reservoir, after a community project to grow them in wire-mesh cages for the first year was finished.

Mrs. Peron Vital Part Of Argentina

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Argentines, who did not regard Mrs. Maria Estela Peron as heir to the throne six months ago, are reappraising their attractive vice president.

The health of President Juan D. Peron, now 78 years old, is a topic of constant speculation. Peron has had two bouts with illness since taking office last Oct. 12.

Military sources indicate the armed forces, who ruled the country from 1966 to 1973, would support the constitutional line of succession in the event of Peron's death.

The acceptance by the armed forces of the idea of a woman president, for the first time in the American continent, reflects a unique political situation in Argentina.

Political instability has hindered the progress of this country for over 30 ears. Peron's Justicialista movement has proved to be the strongest political force but the ranks are bitterly divided.

Even former President Hector Campora, elected as a stand-in for Peron in the elections last March, has been banished from the inner circle since he resigned to let Peron run in new elections. Campora is now ambassador to Mexico.

Little is known about Maria Estela's life before she met Peron in Panama in 1956. She was 25, singing and dancing in a waterfront cabaret when she met the exiled leader.

Peron married her in a secret ceremony in Madrid in 1960. Their marriage was not made public for several years because they feared that Peron's followers, who adored his second wife Eva, would not accept someone else in her place.

Peron had been married and widowed for the first time in 1938 when he was an unknown army officer.

Eva died of cancer in 1952 but her "shirtless ones," as she called the poor, idolized the fiery radio actress and kept her memory alive.

Maria Estela has dutifully praised "Evita" and tried to follow in her footsteps, but she has not yet inspired the same enthusiasm.
